There are whimsical tales including Swept Away which tells of a female ornithologist who falls in love on the blustery island of Unst and The Kind Assassin about a bored and loveless radio shock jock who sets the world record for most continuous hours without sleep and who may never sleep again. And in Dogology a young woman in suburban New England becomes so obsessed with man's best friend that she begins to lose her own identity to a pack of strays. Muscular, provocative, and blurring the boundaries between humans and nature, the funny and the shocking Tooth and Claw is Boyle at his best. Rook; Tooth and Claw

Troy

Case, 2005-07-25 Among the most socially and personally vocal archaeological remains on the North American continent are the massive and often complexly designed earthen architecture of Hopewellian peoples of two thousand years ago, their elaborately embellished works of art made of glistening metals and stones from faraway places, and their highly formalized mortuaries. In this book, twenty-one researchers in interwoven efforts immerse themselves and the reader in this vibrant archaeological record in order to richly reconstruct the societies, rituals, and ritual interactions of Hopewellian peoples. By finding the faces, actions, and motivations of Hopewellian peoples as individuals who constructed knowable social roles, the authors explore in a personalized and locally contextualized manner the details of Hopewellian life: leadership, its sacred and secular power bases, recruitment, and formalization over time; systems of social ranking and prestige; animal totemic clan organization; kinship structures and sodalities; gender roles; prestige work load; and health community organization in its tri-scalar residential, symbolic, and demographic forms; intercommunity alliances and changes in their strategies and expanses over time; and interregional travels for power, questing, pilgrimage, healing, tutelage, and acquiring ritual knowledge. This book is useful to scholars, graduate students, and advanced undergraduates interested in the workings and development of social complexity at local and interregional scales, recent theoretical developments in the anthropology of the topics listed above, the prehistory of eastern North America, its history of intellectual development, and Native American ritual symbolism and belief.
