

Brain
The brain is the central processing unit of the human body, responsible for all thought, action, and sensation. It is composed of billions of neurons that communicate with each other to process information.

Heart
The heart is a muscular organ that pumps blood throughout the body. It consists of four chambers: the right and left atria and ventricles. The heart is located in the chest cavity, slightly to the left of the center.

Lungs
The lungs are a pair of large, spongy organs in the chest that take in oxygen from the air and transfer it to the blood. They are protected by the rib cage and the diaphragm.

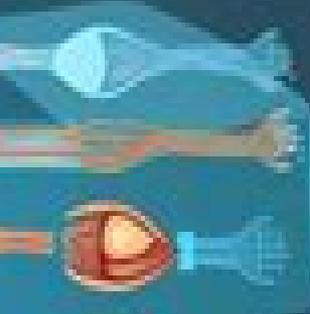

Stomach
The stomach is a large, muscular organ in the upper abdomen that breaks down food into smaller pieces and mixes it with stomach acid. It is part of the digestive system.

Intestines
The intestines are a long, coiled tube in the lower abdomen that absorbs nutrients from the food and eliminates waste. They are divided into the small intestine and the large intestine.

Heart and Lungs
The heart and lungs work together to circulate blood throughout the body. The heart pumps oxygenated blood to the lungs, where it picks up oxygen and releases carbon dioxide. The oxygenated blood then travels to the rest of the body.

Brain and Spinal Cord
The brain and spinal cord are part of the central nervous system. The brain is the control center, and the spinal cord carries messages between the brain and the rest of the body. The spinal cord is protected by the vertebrae.
