The 22 full papers and 4 short papers presented in this volume were carefully reviewed and selected from 41 submissions. Encyclopaedia Britannica: Demijohn-Edward Hugh Chisholm, 1910 This eleventh edition was developed during the encyclopaedia's transition from a British to an American publication. Some of its articles were written by the best known scholars of the time and it is considered to be a landmark encyclopaedia for scholarship and literary style. The Encyclopaedia Britannica: Demijohn-Edward , 1910 The last great work of the age of reason, the final instance when all human knowledge could be presented with a single point of view. Unabashed optimism and unabashed racism pervades many entries in the 11th and provide its defining characteristics. Despite its occasional ugliness, the reputation of the 11th persists today because of the staggering depth of knowledge contained within its volumes. It is especially strong in its biographical entries. These delve deeply into the history of men and women prominent in their eras who have since been largely forgotten except by the historians and scholars. <https://www.theguardian.com/books/booksblog/2012/apr/10/encyclopedia-britannica-11th-edition> Notes and Queries , 1903 One for All Russell Hardin, 1997-08-29 In a book that challenges the most widely held ideas of why individuals engage in collective conflict, Russell Hardin offers a timely, crucial explanation of group action in its most destructive forms. Contrary to those observers who attribute group violence to irrationality, primordial instinct, or complex psychology, Hardin uncovers a systematic exploitation of self-interest in the underpinnings of group identification and collective violence. Using examples from Mafia vendettas to ethnic violence in places such as Bosnia and Rwanda, he describes the social and economic circumstances that set this violence into motion. Hardin explains why hatred alone does not necessarily start wars but how leaders cultivate it to mobilize their people He also reveals the thinking behind the preemptive strikes that contribute to much of the violence between groups identifies the dangers of particularist communitarianism and argues for government structures to prevent any ethnic or other group from having too much sway Exploring conflict between groups such as Serbs and Croats Hutu and Tutsi Northern Irish Catholics and Protestants Hardin vividly illustrates the danger that arises when individual and group interests merge In these examples groups of people have been governed by movements that managed to reflect their members personal interests mainly by striving for political and economic advances at the expense of other groups and by closing themselves off from society at large The author concludes that we make a better and safer world if we design our social institutions to facilitate individual efforts to achieve personal goals than if we concentrate on the ethnic political makeup of our respective societies New York Education ,1900 The Encyclopædia Britannica Hugh Chisholm,1910
