He had the innate ability and the opportunities to study with many great teachers. The result was the Grandmaster Xiong was a teacher who embodied a stunning comprehension of taijiquan, including open hand and weapon routines that are practiced solo or with a partner. Anyone who has studied taiji long enough to gain proficiency in the fundamental practices probably has read enough to also grasp the general history and theory of the art. What we read influences our ideas about what the word taiji represents as a practice. For this reason, it is beneficial to look outside the mainstream writings to gain a broader view of the rich tradition taiji encompasses. A look at some of the lesser-known lineages can illustrate facets of taiji that would have otherwise been overlooked or underappreciated. In the first chapter in this anthology, Wong Yuenming details the Li Family Taiji style as it developed from the teachings of Yang Luchan. Sources state that Yang Luchan gave his student Wang Lanting classics, writings from Yang's teacher Chen Changxing, manuals, secret instructions, heart transmissions, and various notes. Wang's gifted disciple Li Ruidong formulated a curriculum that was uniquely immense, including training regimens he inherited at the turn of the century. Cai Naibiao's chapter focuses on a gatekeeper of Wu Family Style Taijiquan, Wu Daxin. He was the grandson of Wu Jianquan (1870-1942), the founder of this lineage. Daxin was particularly famous for his taiji saber skills. The author is a lineage holder living in Hong Kong and was able to provide much information and insights into the life and contributions of Wu Daxin. Training in Sun Lutang's taiji style presents not only an extremely healthy exercise but also an effective system of combat, as author Jake Burroughs discusses in chapter three. This is a concise yet inclusive overview of

Sun Family Taiji boxing including the historical background real world applications and the theory involved in this often overlooked system of taiji Burroughs is assisted in photographic presentations by Tim Cartmell The final chapter presents a branch of Yang Style as taught by Xiong Yanghe 1888 1981 who was a leading scholar practitioner in Taiwan over the decades Information assembled here provides a comprehensive overview of Xiong Style Taiji Included are Xiong s lineage his preservation of the system and its significance for the understanding taijiquan as a martial art and exercise for health
