I had entered in an idle mood the shop of one of those curiosity venders who are called marchands de bric-à-brac in that Parisian argot which is so perfectly unintelligible elsewhere in France. You have doubtless glanced occasionally through the windows of some of these shops which have become so numerous now that it is fashionable to buy antiquated furniture and that every petty stockbroker thinks he must have his chambre au moyen âge. There is one thing there which clings alike to the shop of the dealer in old iron, the ware room of the tapestry maker, the laboratory of the chemist, and the studio of the painter, in all those gloomy dens where a furtive daylight filters in through the window shutters: the most manifestly ancient thing is dust. The cobwebs are more authentic than the gimp-laces, and the old pear-tree furniture on exhibition is actually younger than the mahogany which arrived but yesterday from America.
