Unfair Trading Practices:

Unfair Trading Practices Dennis Campbell, 1997-09-17 The use of unfair trading practices constitutes a breach of the law against unfair competition The principle of freedom of competition is vital to any market Without it there exists no protection against large companies obtaining monopolies and then ruthlessly exercising market dominance The ability of other companies to freely compete with such entities is necessary to protect consumers from for example highly inflated prices On the other hand the right to compete must be tempered to avoid abuse by traders using unscrupulous methods to sell products or services Such misuse also threatens to impede the businesses of others and breach the principle of fair competition This subject is particularly relevant in today's society where competition plays such an important role and new technologies such as the Internet provide more and more room for competition This special volume of the Comparative Law Yearbook of International Business addresses this important controversial subject It gives a country by country account of the provisions and procedures laid down in various jurisdictions worldwide Each contribution is provided by a leading practitioner in the area of competition law As a result Unfair Trading Practices is a useful tool for anyone having to deal with unfair acts in the course of trading

Unfair Trading Practices, 2016-04-22 Unfair trading practices is generally defined as consisting of deceptive fraudulent or otherwise injurious conduct referring to practices that directly affect consumers or competitors In business to consumer relationships unfair trading practices may involve misleading claims and advertising conditional selling excessive pricing discriminatory pricing and other misrepresentations In business to business relationships the prohibited conduct may be trade mark infringement misappropriation false advertising bait and switch sales tactics unauthorized substitution of brands of goods use of confidential information by a former employee to solicit customers theft of trade secrets breach of a restrictive covenant trade libel and false representation of products or services In this edition of the Comparative Law Yearbook of International Business practicing lawyers from Argentina Austria Brazil China Germany Italy Japan Poland South Africa South Korea Sweden the United Kingdom the United States and the European Union examine unfair trading practices in their respective jurisdictions

Cyber Consumer Law and Unfair Trading Practices Cristina Coteanu, 2017-03-02 Of great interest to practitioners policymakers and academics as well as to consumers and traders in general this timely work addresses all important legal and practical issues that arise in connection with online trading This important work outlines the existing legislation and legal jurisprudence in the EU and the US and exposes the potential for unfair commercial practices to arise from online contracts electronic agents disclosure of information online advertising and online dispute resolution in cross border transactions The continuing prevalence of unfair commercial practices will ensure this book remains in great demand

Unfair Trading Practices in the Business-to-business Food Supply Chain, 2015 Unfair trade practices imposed by the stronger party to a contract can have a profound impact on the functioning of the market increasing costs and reducing revenues of the parties that experience them This background paper reviews unfair trade practices that can appear on any side of the B2B Business to Business transaction in any sector of the market Recently unfair trading practices have been of particular interest to the EU in relation to food supply chains Briefing concludes that any consideration concerning possible future action in the area of unfair trading practices must consider a number of issues such as whether or not legislative action is needed and if so what scope and form should it take However the key element of any action is to ensure its subsequent effective enforcement

Regulatory Responses and Institutional Alternatives in the Light of the New EU Directive Fabrizio Cafaggi,2019 Unfair trade practices UTPs can refer to individual firms or more often concern the entire chain The article contends that UTPs in supply chains present specific features as a consequence they require specific rules and remedies Power concentration in food global chains often leads to abuse by shifting risks and costs to weaker contractual partners who are not necessarily the most efficient actors to control risks and to manage costs related to production and distribution processes Inappropriate exercise of market and contractual power may bring about inefficient allocation of tasks together with undesirable distributional consequences A distinction should be made between isolated UTPs whose effects mostly remain within the bilateral contractual relation and systemic UTPs whose effects directly or indirectly spread along the chain The latter create much more severe consequences both distributional and exclusionary By examining the recently adopted EU Directive on UTPs in agri food chains and its complementarities in respect to private regulation the authors develop a conceptual framework that might be useful to complement existing and forthcoming regulation at EU and national level with rules reflecting the supply chain dimension of UTPs More particularly the authors suggest that both distributional and exclusionary systemic effects should be considered in a the definition of the practice b the type of prohibition and the extent to which agreed terms may allow the use of some of the practices c the nature and scope of liability of the infringer s d the use of presumptions concerning the practices effects e the choice and content of sanctions and remedies These distinctions fit within the discretionary space allowed to MSs when implementing the directive making the implementation more effective and consistent with its regulatory goals Unfair Trading Practices Food Supply Chb Bert Keirsbilck, Evelyne Terryn, 2020-07-24 There is a wide spread consensus that UTPs occur throughout the food supply chain Unfair trading practices UTPs can be defined as practices which grossly deviate from good commercial conduct are contrary to good faith and fair dealing and are unilaterally imposed by one trading partner on its counterparty Some Member States such as France Belgium and the UK have already adopted legislation specifically prohibiting such practices in the food and or non food supply chain In addition various self regulatory initiatives exist 0In April 2019 the European Parliament and the Council adopted Directive EU 2019 633 on unfair trading practices in business to business relationships in the agricultural and food supply chain A Commission Proposal of April 2018 COM 2018 173 final was substantially amended To improve farmers and small and medium sized businesses position in the food supply chain the Directive bans certain unfair trading practices including late payments for perishable food products last minute order cancellations unilateral changes to contracts refusal to enter into a written contract returning unsold or wasted products payment for buyer s marketing Each Member State has to designate a competent authority to enforce these rules and these authorities must have the power to both launch investigations and fine operators who break the rules The Member States now have two years to implement the Directive 00This book compiles the various papers presented at the 2nd UTP Roundtable organized by the CONSUMER COMPETITION MARKET CCM institute of the KU Leuven on 28 June 2018 It entails a critical analysis of the final text of the EU Directive the current state of play and the different regulatory options at national level by 2021
