National Independent Human Rights Institutions for Children Ursula Kilkelly, Emily Logan, 2021-09-20 Following the 30th anniversary of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child in 2020 and the creation of the UN Sustainable Development Goals there is increased interest in and a need to develop national human rights bodies for children's rights. This book provides an in-depth look at one domestic independent children's rights institution the Irish Ombudsman for Children's Office to highlight the learnings for an international audience and the methodologies that can be used to promote and protect children's rights at a national level. Co-authored by Ireland's first Ombudsman for Children and a children's rights professor the book will present an original and informed analysis of how a national human rights institution can advocate most effectively for the rights of children. By using illustrative case studies the book will highlight how the powers of a national human rights institution can be put to strategic use to address specific children's rights deficits in areas of child protection, youth detention and public awareness about children's rights. Each chapter focusses on a case study, identifies a problem, the approach or intervention by the Ombudsman for Children, the outcome and reflects on lessons learned. It ensures that the cases can be extracted, examined and replicated in other jurisdictions by an international community interested in the promotion, monitoring and protection of children's rights. It speaks to those interested in Human Rights, Children's Rights, Socio-legal studies, Social Work, Childhood Studies, Administrative Law, Constitutional Law and International Law and to practitioners and policy makers in this field.

Ely Peter Meadows, 2010 Despite its size Ely has always been one of the most wealthy and important dioceses in the country. The essays here focus on the careers of its bishops with additional chapters on its buildings and holdings. The diocese of Ely formed out of the huge diocese of Lincoln was established in 1109 in St Etheldreda's Isle of Ely and the ancient Abbey became Ely Cathedral Priory. Covering at first only the Isle and Cambridgeshire it grew immensely in 1837 with the addition of Huntingdonshire, Bedfordshire and West Suffolk. The latter two counties left the diocese in 1914 but a substantial part of West Norfolk was added soon after. Until the nineteenth century Ely was one of the wealthiest dioceses in the country and in every century there were notable appointments to the bishopric. Few of the bishops were promoted elsewhere for most it was the culmination of their career and many had made significant contributions both to national life and to scholarship before their preferment to Ely. They included men of the calibre of Lancelot Andrewes in the seventeenth century, the renowned book collector John Moore in the eighteenth and James Russell Woodford founder of the Theological College in the nineteenth. In essays each spanning about a century experts in the field explore the lives and careers of its bishops and their families and social contacts, examine their impact on the diocese and their role in the wider Church in England. Other chapters consider such areas as the estates, the residences, the works of art and the library and archives. Overall they chart the remarkable development over nine hundred years of one of the smallest, richest and youngest of the traditional dioceses of England. Peter Meadows is manuscript librarian in Cambridge.
