marketing and advertisement departments of many companies is to make us link happiness to comfort and pleasures A simple case study based on available data of the year 2011 shows that marketing and credit cards could have increased the energy consumption by 12.3% and added about 1.1 ppm of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere The recent scientific data from climate change conference in Paris seem to tell us that lifestyle and behavioral changes are crucial to avoid more severe consequences of global warming For example if one billion households worldwide could save an amount of energy equivalent to one 60 Watt bulb the resulting reduction of the total amount of carbon dioxide sent to the atmosphere could represent 3.5% of the total amount needed to be reduced in order to stay in the ceiling of 2C by 2050 The challenge today is to redefine happiness away from consumption in order to avoid more severe natural disasters Some people are already introducing the new minimalist life style in order to depend less on consumption Unlike comfort discomfort is seen as crucial to our pursuit of genuine happiness
