Adventuring in Dictionaries John Considine, 2010-10-12 Adventuring in Dictionaries New Studies in the History of Lexicography brings together seventeen papers on the making of dictionaries from the sixteenth century to the present day The first five treat English and French lexicography in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries Heberto Fernandez and Monique Cormier discuss the outside matter of French English bilingual dictionaries Kusujiro Miyoshi re assesses the influence of Robert Cawdrey John Considine uncovers the biography of Henry Cockeram Antonella Amatuzzi discusses Pierre Borel s use of his predecessors and Fredric Dolezal investigates multi word units in the dictionary of John Wilkins and William Lloyd Linda Mitchell s account of dictionaries as behaviour guides in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries leads on to Giovanni Iamartino s presentation of words associated with women in the dictionary of Samuel Johnson and Thora Van Male s of the ornaments in the Encyclop die Nineteenth century and subsequent topics are treated by Anatoly Liberman on the growth of the English etymological dictionary Julie Coleman on dictionaries of rhyming slang Laura Pinnavaia on Richardson s New Dictionary and the changing vocabulary of English Peter Gilliver on early editorial decisions and reconsiderations in the making of the Oxford English Dictionary Anne Dykstra on the use of Latin as the metalanguage in Joost Halbertsma s Lexicon Frisicum Laura Santone on the Dictionnaire critique serialized in Georges Bataille s Surrealist review Documents Sylvia Brown on the stories of missionary lexicography behind the Eskimo English Dictionary of 1925 and Michael Adams on the legacies of the Early Modern English Dictionary project The diverse critical perspectives of the leading lexicographers and historians of lexicography who contribute to this volume are united by a shared interest in the close reading of dictionaries and a shared concern with the making and reading of dictionaries as human activities which cannot be understood without attention to the lives of the people who undertook them

Understanding British English Margaret E. Moore,1992 Scenes in Dialect for Young Actors Kimberly Mohne Hill,2002 For the first time a collection of scenes to work on in Dialect Challenging scenes which require dialect have been compiled in this new work from Smith Kraus In sections with an introduction and description of each dialect there are scenes which use Standard British Cockney British Irish Russian American Southern and Brooklyn dialects to name a few This book is excellent as a supplement to your acting speech training and would be great use in scene study classes and Dialect courses

T.P.'s and Cassell's Weekly ,1926 The Discipline of Speculators Caitlin Martha Zaloom,2002 This dissertation examines the transition in global financial futures markets from open outcry or pit trading to electronic exchange It directs attention to the intertwined processes of organizational change and the formation of new techniques of risk taking and reasoning in capital markets Specifically it examines the tensions between ideals of rationalized economic behavior and practices of financial traders Drawing upon ethnographic research on the trading floor of the Chicago Board of Trade CBOT and in a London proprietary dealing room it explores the relationship between financial action material technologies and the process of self formation in global futures markets Historically the largest futures exchange in the world the CBOT is now fighting to retain its niche in financial markets A trade of virtually any size can be executed quickly and efficiently in the exchange s deep and liquid markets But electronic technologies have changed the financial terrain The advocates of electronic markets now claim that the CBOT as an organization is hindering the free flow of capital by maintaining the advantages of a local market for its members at the expense of rationalization The CBOT is threatened by dynamism of the system that it has helped to produce The transition from face to face to face to screen trading marks a shift from one kind of modem market form to a new modem form Each is grounded in a set of material technologies and techniques of exchange that establish a different basis for interaction economic knowledge and profit making strategies Yet the continuities are equally important By examining a Chicago style trading room in London the dissertation analyzes how these trading techniques are adopted adapted and transformed in the new location and technology The Discipline of Speculators analyzes financial practice in two of the global economy's key points of production mobilizing observations from the field to advance a broader and deeper understanding of speculation and globalization

The Playbill, 1957 The State of the Language Philip Howard, 1985 Is the English language in decline Many people seem to think so but Philip Howard isn't one of them The Literary Editor of The Times of London Howard takes a robust commonsensical view of the changes that are happening in English His is not the Panglossian attitude that all is necessarily for the best in the best of all possible languages but he does feel that change is necessary and healthy in any living language Howard here examines the language in its various branches and categories such as grammar and pronunciation spelling and punctuation dialect and slang He discusses the effect the new technologies from cable TV to photocomposition are having on the mother tongue and he examines the new dialects that are coming into use He navigates the back streets of euphemism and the broad boring boulevards of cliché He asks whether the language is actually changing as fast as we suppose and if so why Howard argues that as far as we can we should strive to direct and control the changes in English in ways that increase its power And where we can't help it he says we should lie back and enjoy its immense richness which is unrivaled by any other language Rather than have us wring our hands Philip Howard entreats us with his customary wit and erudition to use our tongues in concert with our brains About the Author Philip Howard is the author of New Words for Old Weasel Words Words Fail Me and most recently A Word in Your Ear
