Inscoe, 1996 Antebellum Southern Appalachia has long been seen as a classless and essentially slaveless region one so alienated and isolated from other parts of the South that with the onset of the Civil War highlanders opposed both secession and Confederate war efforts In a multifaceted challenge to these basic assumptions about Appalachian society in the mid nineteenth century John Inscoe reveals new variations on the diverse motives and rationales that drove Southerners particularly in the Upper South out of the Union Mountain Masters vividly portrays the wealth family connections commercial activities and governmental power of the slaveholding elite that controlled the social economic and political development of western North Carolina In examining the role played by slavery in shaping the political consciousness of mountain residents the book also provides fresh insights into the nature of southern class interaction community structure and master slave relationships Little Red Readings Angela E. Hubler, 2014-04-29 A significant body of scholarship examines the production of children s literature by women and minorities as well as the representation of gender race and sexuality But few scholars have previously analyzed class in children s literature This definitive collection remedies that by defining and exemplifying historical materialist approaches to children s literature The introduction of Little Red Readings lucidly discusses characteristics of historical materialism the methodological approach to the study of literature and culture first outlined by Karl Marx defining key concepts and analyzing factors that have marginalized this tradition particularly in the United States The thirteen essays here analyze a wide range of texts from children s bibles to Mary Poppins to The Hunger Games using concepts in historical materialism from class struggle to the commodity Essayists apply the work of Marxist theorists such as Ernst Bloch and Fredric Jameson to children s literature and film Others examine the work of leftist writers in India Germany England and the United States The authors argue that historical materialist methodology is critical to the study of children s literature as children often suffer most from inequality Some of the critics in this collection reveal the ways that literature for children often functions to naturalize capitalist economic and social relations Other critics champion literature that reveals to readers the construction of social reality and point to texts that enable an understanding of the role ordinary people might play in creating a more just future The collection adds substantially to our understanding of the political and class character of children s literature worldwide and contributes to the development of a radical history of children s literature Consuming Agency in Fairy Tales, Childlore, and Folkliterature Susan Honeyman, 2013-04-15 In this book Honeyman looks at manifestations of youth agency and representations of agency produced for youth as depicted in fairy tales childlore and folk literature investigating the dynamic of ideological manipulation and independent resistance as it can be read or expressed in bodies first through social puppetry and then through coercive temptation our consumption replacing the more obvious strings that bind us Reading tales like Popeye Hansel Gretel and Pinocchio Honeyman concentrates on the agency of young subjects through material relations especially where food signifies the invisible strings used to control them in popular discourse and practice modeling efforts to come out from under the hegemonic handler and take control at least of their own body spaces and ultimately finding that most examples indicate less power than the ideal holds
