Douglas Gomery,2017-10-27 Despite being one of the biggest industries in the United States indeed the World the internal workings of the dream factory that is Hollywood is little understood outside the business. The Hollywood Studio System A History is the first book to describe and analyse the complete development, classic operation and reinvention of the global corporate entities which produce and distribute most of the films we watch. Starting in 1920 Adolph Zukor, Head of Paramount Pictures, over the decade of the 1920s helped to fashion Hollywood into a vertically integrated system, a set of economic innovations which was firmly in place by 1930. For the next three decades the movie industry in the United States and the rest of the world operated by according to these principles. Cultural, social and economic changes ensured the demise of this system after the Second World War. A new way to run Hollywood was required. Beginning in 1962 Lew Wasserman of Universal Studios emerged as the key innovator in creating a second studio system. He realized that creating a global media conglomerate was more important than simply being vertically integrated. Gomery's history tells the story of a tale of two systems using primary materials from a score of archives across the United States, as well as a close reading of both the business and trade press of the time. Together with a range of photographs never before published, the book also features over 150 box features illuminating aspects of the business.

Hollywood on the Hudson Richard Koszarski, 2008. Thomas Edison invented his motion picture system in New Jersey in the 1890s and within a few years most American filmmakers could be found within a mile or two of the Hudson River. They planted themselves here because they needed the artistic and entrepreneurial energy that D.W. Griffith realized New York had in abundance. But as the going rate for land and labor skyrocketed and their business grew more industrialized, most of them moved out. The way most historians explain it, the role of New York in the development of American film ends here. In Hollywood on the Hudson, Richard Koszarski rewrites an important part of the history of American cinema. During the 1920s and 1930s, film industry executives had centralized the mass production of feature pictures in a series of gigantic film factories scattered across Southern California, while maintaining New York as the economic and administrative center. But as Koszarski reveals, many writers, producers and directors also continued to work here, especially if their independent vision was too big for the Hollywood production line. East Coast filmmakers Oscar Micheaux, Rudolph Valentino, Ben Hecht, Charles MacArthur, Paul Robeson, Gloria Swanson, Max Fleischer and others quietly created a studio system without back lots, long term contracts or seasonal production slates. They substituted newsreel photography for Hollywood glamour, targeted niche audiences instead of middle American families, ignored accepted dramatic conventions and pushed the boundaries of motion picture censorship. Rebellious and unconventional, they saw the New York studios as laboratories, not factories, and used them to pioneer the development of new technologies, from talkies to television, new genres, new talent and ultimately an entirely new vision of commercial cinema.

An Evening's Entertainment Richard Koszarski, 1994-05-04. On the age of silent movies.

Literary L.A. Lionel Rolfe, 1981. Hollywood as Historian Peter C. Rollins, 1983. Freddie Maas's revealing memoir offers a unique perspective on the film industry and Hollywood culture in their early days and illuminates the plight of Hollywood writers.

working within the studio system An ambitious twenty three year old Maas moved to Hollywood and launched her own writing career by drafting a screenplay of the bestselling novel The Plastic Age for It girl Clara Bow On the basis of that script she landed a staff position at powerhouse MGM studios In the years to come she worked with and befriended numerous actors and directors including Norma Shearer Joan Crawford and Eric von Stroheim as well as such writers and producers as Thomas Mann and Louis B Mayer As a professional screenwriter Fredderica quickly learned that scripts and story ideas were frequently rewritten and that screen credit was regularly given to the wrong person Studio executives wanted well worn plots but it was the writer s job to develop the innovative situations and scintillating dialogue that would bring to picture to life For over twenty years Freddie and her friends struggled to survive in this incredibly competitive environment Through it all Freddie remained a passionate outspoken woman in an industry run by powerful men and her provocative nonconformist ways brought her success failure wisdom and a wealth of stories opinions and insight into a fascinating period in screen history
