Frobels, Nicholas J. Cavalli, C. Bernt Pettersson, 1985 Remediation Engineering Suthan S. Suthersan, Jeff McDonough, 1996-10-24 In many cases the application of in situ technologies evolved as a necessity from a cost perspective However the basic understanding of the mechanisms and theory behind these technologies was treated as a black box Although we have seen some tremendous successes in the application of remediation technologies over the past several years we have also seen many cases in which a technology has been incorrectly or inappropriately applied. In most cases this misapplication has been the result of a poor understanding of the basic concepts and mechanisms behind the technologies. Without proper understanding the potential for misapplication of technologies remains a serious economic and technical threat. North American Tunneling 2004 Levent Ozdemir, 2004-04-01. This publication includes papers from the North American Tunneling 2004 conference sponsored by the American Underground Construction Association. The theme of the conference is Underground Construction: the Sensible Solution to Urban Problems, to reflect the increasing importance of locating urban facilities in the United States underground for enhanced security to build critical infrastructure where it is needed and to improve the function of urban areas. The papers are grouped in four major themes: Management of Underground Projects, Public Policy and Underground Projects, Advances in Technology, Case Studies, Trials, Tribulation and Triumphs in Tunneling. This work should benefit everyone involved in any aspect of infrastructure tunneling and underground construction. Hazardous and Industrial Waste Proceedings, 27th Mid-Atlantic Conference Arup K. SenGupta, 1995-07-06. Foundation Engineering Handbook Hsai-Yang Fang, 1990-12-31. More than ten years have passed since the first edition was published. During that period there have been a substantial number of changes in geotechnical engineering, especially in the applications of foundation engineering. As the world population increases, more land is needed, and many soil deposits previously deemed unsuitable for residential housing or other construction projects are now being used. Such areas include problematic soil regions, mining subsidence areas, and sanitary landfills. To overcome the problems associated with these natural or man-made soil deposits, new and improved methods of analysis, design, and implementation are needed in foundation construction. As society develops and living standards rise, tall buildings, transportation facilities, and industrial complexes are increasingly being built. Because of the heavy design loads and the complicated environments, the traditional design concepts, construction materials, methods, and equipment also need improvement. Further, recent energy and material shortages have caused additional burdens on the engineering profession and brought about the need to seek alternative or cost-saving methods for foundation design and construction. Slurry Walls as Structural Systems Petros P. Xanthakos, 1994. Permeable Barriers for Groundwater Remediation Arun R. Gavaskar, 1998. Because of the limitations of conventional pump and treat systems in treating groundwater contaminants, permeable barriers are potentially more cost-effective than pump and treat systems for treating dissolved chlorinated solvent plumes which may persist in the saturated zone for several decades. Other contaminants such as chromium or other soluble heavy metals can also be treated with this technology. Permeable Barriers for Groundwater Remediation discusses the types of permeable barriers, their design and construction, and how they can be monitored to evaluate compliance. It provides practical guidance on reactive media selection, treatability testing, hydrogeologic and geochemical modeling, and innovative installation techniques for the evaluation and application of this promising new technology The types of permeable barriers discussed include trench type and caisson based reactive cells innovative emplacements such as horizontal trenching and jetting and continuous reactive barriers versus funnel and gate systems

Design and Performance of Earth Retaining Structures Philip C. Lambe, Lawrence A.
