Abstract

Saccharomyces cerevisiae is a commonly used microorganism in the biotechnological industry. For the industrial heterologous production of compounds, it is of great advantage to work with growth-controllable yeast strains. In our work, we utilized the natural pheromone system of S. cerevisiae and generated a set of different strains possessing an α -pheromone controllable growth behavior. Naturally, the α -factor pheromone is involved in communication between haploid S. cerevisiae cells. Perception of the pheromone initiates several cellular changes, enabling the cells to prepare for an upcoming mating event. We exploited this natural pheromone response system and developed two different plasmid-based modules, in which the target genes, MET15 and FAR1, are under control of the α -factor sensitive PTG1 promoter for a controlled expression in S. cerevisiae. Whereas expression of MET15 led to a growth induction, FAR1 expression inhibited growth. The utilization of low copy number or high copy number plasmids for target gene expression and different concentrations of α -factor allow a finely adjustable control of yeast growth rate.

1 | INTRODUCTION

Due to the easy genetic tractability and the extensive knowledge regarding its metabolism, genetics and lifestyle, the yeast Saccharomyces cerevisiae is a commonly applied microorganism in the biotechnological industry, for example, for beverage, food or biofuel production [1–3]. For maintaining stability in biotechnological production cultures or co-cultures, one critical point is the controllable growth behavior of the microorganisms. In general, yeast growth can be controlled by the availability of nutrients such as sugars, amino acids, or nitrogen compounds, as these determine development programs and growth rates [4]. Different compounds such as farnesol [5], proteinogenic amino acids as well as the nonproteinogenic amino acids citrulline and ornithine [6], or weak acids like acetic acid or formic acid [7] possess growth-inhibiting effects at high levels. For some applications, the use of specific mutations may also be an alternative constitutive
