

THE RISE AND FALL OF DEVELOPMENT THEORY-COLIN LEYS

Introduction

Colin Leys talks about the first theories of development first by going back over the past 10,000 years or so since settled agriculture first began to replace hunting and gathering.

Agriculture required, but also made possible, an increased specialization of labour, and the development of state apparatuses capable of organizing the defence of cultivated land against outside aggressors and of assuring stability in the increasingly complex social and economic relations on which an agricultural society gradually came to depend.

With the establishment of agriculture, then, the process of social evolution greatly accelerated relative to that which had occurred during the preceding 1.8 million years of human life on earth; but for a long time (we may suppose) the process was still sufficiently gradual.

The advent of capitalism in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, however, and above all the advent of industrial capitalism in the late eighteenth century, forced the fact of human economic, social, political and cultural development on people's attention.

Hegel and Marx- true originators of development theory because they recognized that it was the sudden acceleration in the rate of change that the establishment of capitalist production and bourgeois society had generated. this understanding, both of them realized, in which capitalist society was seen as the outcome of an evolutionary process stretching back into the mists of time, should also make possible an adequate understanding of earlier societies.
