Blood supply and the heart

The heart is a pump that circulates a continuous flow of oxygenated blood to the rest of the body. It also pumps deoxygenated blood back to the lungs. The blood supply to the heart is called the coronary artery system.

How heart disease develops

Over time, the cells of the coronary arteries become more inflamed and eventually a gradual buildup of the soft substance called plaque. The plaque, which contains cholesterol, narrows the arteries, restricting the oxygen and nutrient-rich blood to the heart muscle, setting off a chain reaction of problems. The resulting condition is coronary artery disease. If left untreated, it can lead to a heart attack or stroke.

What is angina?

When the coronary artery is angina, a partial blockage temporarily reduces oxygen flow to the heart muscle. The heart muscle is starved of oxygen and this causes chest pain. The pain is usually relieved by rest or nitroglycerin. The pain is usually relieved by rest or nitroglycerin. The pain is usually relieved by rest or nitroglycerin.

What is a heart attack?

A heart attack occurs when the blood supply to the heart muscle is completely blocked. This causes the heart muscle to die. The heart muscle is starved of oxygen and this causes chest pain. Heart attack warning symptoms

- Discomfort or breathlessness and sweating
- Nausea and vomiting

Rhythmic disturbances

Disturbances in the heart's rhythm can be caused by a variety of factors. These include changes in the heart's electrical system, changes in the heart's structure, and changes in the heart's function. These disturbances can be life-threatening.

Arrhythmic warning symptoms

Signs of a rhythmic disturbance may include palpitations, often described as fluttering or racing heartbeats not related to exercise, repeated episodes of lightheadedness or dizziness, sudden fainting spells, and sudden collapse, or life-threatening conditions.

Causes of coronary artery disease

The most common cause of coronary artery disease is atherosclerosis. This is a condition in which the arteries become narrowed and hardened by a buildup of plaque in the inner wall of the artery. This plaque is made up of cholesterol, fat, and other substances.

Healthy lifestyle changes

Following a healthy lifestyle can help reduce the risk of heart disease. This includes eating a healthy diet, exercising regularly, not smoking, and keeping cholesterol and blood pressure under control.

What is congestive heart failure?

Congestive heart failure is a condition in which the heart is unable to pump enough blood to the rest of the body. This causes fluid to build up in the lungs and other parts of the body, leading to symptoms such as shortness of breath and swelling.

CHF warning symptoms
