Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging Barbara Berkman, 2006-02-09 The Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging is the first reference to combine the fields of health care aging and social work in a single authoritative volume These areas are too often treated as discrete entities while the reality is that all social workers deal with issues in health and aging on a daily basis regardless of practice specialization As the baby boomers age the impact on practice in health and aging will be dramatic and social workers need more specialized knowledge about aging health care and the resources available to best serve older adults and their families The volume s 102 original chapters and 13 overviews written by the most experienced and prominent gerontological health care scholars in the United States and across the world provide social work practitioners and educators with up to date knowledge of evidence based practice guidelines for effectively assessing and treating older adults and their families new models for intervention in both community based practice and institutional care and knowledge of significant policy and research issues in health and aging A truly monumental resource this handbook represents the best research on health and aging available to social workers today

Family Health Social Work Practice John T. Pardeck, 2002 Pardeck and his contributors approach the topic of family health from a macro perspective Family health is a holistic approach to treatment embracing aspects of family functioning not typically considered in other more traditional approaches to assessment and treatment They place particular emphasis on the ecological context in which the family functions including the neighborhood community and other larger social systems Family health is defined as the development of and continuous interaction among the physical mental emotional social economic cultural and spiritual dimensions of the family that result in the holistic well being of the family and its members The chapters in the book are guided by a number of key premises including a Family health social work practice is grounded in a biopsychosocial approach to assessment and treatment b Family health is based in a systems ecological approach to assessment and intervention because of the role that various systems play in the well being of the family c Family health views the family system as the most important system for promoting the growth and development of the person d Family health social work practice requires close collaboration between social work practitioners and other professionals Based on these basic premises Pardeck focuses on the macro level issues of family health practice that include community intervention policy and program development and program administration The book is an important resource for social work professionals scholars students and other researchers involved with social work practice and human services

An Introduction to Family Social Work Donald Collins,Catheleen Jordan,Heather Coleman,1999 This text provides beginning students with the knowledge and skills necessary for family social work Not a family therapy text it is intended for students who will work with families but who will not necessarily undertake advanced training in family therapy Chapters 1 and 2 present a philosophical perspective and provide an understanding of family functions Chapters 3 and 4 treat family assessment and Chapters 5 through 10 lead students through the actual process of working with families The concluding chapters discuss gender and culturally sensitive practice and cover special situations that family social workers may encounter in working with children and adults

Social Work Practice with Families Lonnie R. Helton,Maggie Jackson,1997 Working With Families in Medical Settings Alison M. Heru,2013-08-21 Working With Families in Medical Settings provides mental health professionals with the tools they need to figure out what patients and families want and how within the constraints imposed by 21st century healthcare setting to best give them the care they need Psychiatrists and other clinicians who work in medical settings know that working with a patient with a chronic illness usually entails work with that patient s family as well as with other medical professionals Some families need education others have specific difficulties or dysfunctions that require skilled assessment and intervention It is up to the clinician to find productive ways to work with common themes in family life expressed emotion levels of resilience life cycle issues and adaptation to illness among others Enter Working With Families in Medical Settings which shines a spotlight on the major issues professional caregivers face and shows them how to structure an effective intervention in all kinds of settings Psychiatrists particularly those in psychosomatic medicine and other clinicians who work with the medically ill will find Working With Families in Medical Settings to be an essential resource and guide to productive relationships with patients and their families

Journal of Education for Social Work ,1995 Brief Treatment in Clinical Social Work Practice Maria D. Corwin,2002 Author Maria Corwin offers a text that addresses the current concerns that professionals may have regarding shorter treatment programs As stated in her preface her goal is to help students and clinical workers gain a sense of competency and confidence in doing time limited work

Educating for Child Welfare Practice ,1998 Journal of Marital and Family Therapy ,1994 Family Functioning John J. Schwab,Helen Gray-Ice,Florence R. Prentice,2006-04-18 The family that most fundamentalof human groups is currently perceived to be changing in response to social biological cultural and technological developments in our postmodernsociety While the observed changes in families have been considered by some sociologists to be evidence of adaptation and therefore normal the authors of this volume consider them maladaptive Viewing society from the point of view of clinical psychiatry they point to greatly increased numbers of children born to single mothers soaring rates of divorce a statistically confirmed increase in mental disorders increase in reported incest high rates of depression in younger people and escalation of the amount of reported family violence as evidence that the family as a social institution is in crisis and can either move toward renewed vitality or continued deterioration Perceiving a need to obtain information about family functioning that might lead to the increased stability and well being of this critically important type of system Dr John Schwab and his associates designed and carried out a research program that began with a thorough review of relevant literature beginning with LePlay's study of 300 families in the 1850s and including important recent statistical studies They found that although these studies represent advances in understanding the family system some serious problems with the research remain one of which is confounding variables such as family function and mental or substance abuse disorders so that if a family member has a problem such as drug abuse the family is classified as dysfunctional

Families in Society, 2009 Family Assessment Handbook Barbara Thomlison, 2002 THE FAMILY ASSESSMENT HANDBOOK is a basic practice guide for social work students and beginning human service professionals of how to do a family assessment for case intervention It is based on person environment or family systems theory drawing from evidence based research for guiding practice decisions This practical book presents the interplay of social work concepts values and skill dilemmas presented using case studies from the author's practice experience By developing a family journal students can apply family systems thinking theory and concepts The book is conceptualized as three teaching and learning units Part One addresses the family systems assessment model Part Two focuses on self assessment and critical thinking through exploring the student's family system Part Three includes four case studies

The Social Services H. Wayne Johnson, 1998 This is a text for the first social work course covering social welfare as an institution and social work as a profession The four parts of the book cover background social problems and social services methods of social work practice and special groups issues and trends The text balances historical material current issues and future considerations It covers the effect of technology privatization case management managed care trends in health care and newer social work roles such as advocacy empowerment more uses of groups and the generalist social worker Among the social problems and issues considered are poverty welfare reform disabilities substance abuse crime AIDS and HIV compulsive gambling and shopping displaced persons spirituality and burnout
