Arctic Report Card 2010 Jacqueline A. Richter-Menge, 2011-08 Tracks recent environmental changes throughout the Arctic. In 2010 it is clear that the Arctic is experiencing the impacts of a prolonged and amplified warming trend highlighted with many record setting events. The impact of this warming is most evident in the dramatic losses that have been observed in the ice covers that define the region. Since the loss of these ice covers serves to further feed the warming trend the expectation is that warming will continue. This makes it increasingly unlikely that the Arctic will return to conditions that were considered normal in the later part of the 20th century. Instead it is very likely that Arctic climate warming will continue and records will continue to be set in years to come. Charts and tables. This is a print on demand report. Toxicology and Human Environments Ernest Hodgson, 2012-09-28 Environmental toxicology is generally held to be the study of the potential of constituents of outdoor environments to impact either human health or the biological structure of the ecosystems involved. This volume is a first attempt to integrate toxicological studies of all of the many human environments both indoor and outdoor and their complex interrelationships. Included are considerations of natural environments, the agroecosystem, occupational, urban and domestic environments as well as the environment associated with Superfund sites and military deployments. The primary emphasis is on public health including the potential health effects of toxicants found in different environments, the bioprocessing of such toxicants in humans and surrogate animals and the principles of risk analysis. Approaches the toxicology of human environments in a new and unique way stressing the complex interrelationships of all human environments and the implication for human and environmental health. Each chapter is written by an acknowledged expert and is addressed to those interested in the broader implications of the environmental modifications that are always associated with the activities of humans living and working in them. Managing for Healthy Ecosystems David J.

Rapport, Bill L. Lasley, Dennis E. Rolston, N. Ole Nielsen, Calvin O. Qualset, Ardeshir B. Damania, 2002-10-29 One of the critical issues of our time is the dwindling capacity of the planet to provide life support for a large and growing human population. Based on a symposium on ecosystem health, Managing for Healthy Ecosystems identifies key issues that must be resolved if there is to be progress in this complex area such as: Evolving methods for regional ecosystem health assessment employing complex adaptive systems coupled with adaptive technologies to permit accurate determination of changes in regional and global environments; Issues and methods for assessing monitoring and managing diversity and its impact on human health in the context of climate change; agroecosystems; restoration of forests; politics, culture and tradition. Leading thinkers in the field provide a coherent synthesis and a benchmark for the practice of this emerging field worldwide. The more than 100 peer reviewed papers are grouped into three major parts. The first, Emerging Concepts, explores the diverse meanings of ecosystem health within ecological, socio-economic and human health perspectives and the linkages to related concepts such as ecological integrity, sustainable development and ecological footprints. The second part, Issues and Methods, introduces methods for assessing and monitoring ecosystem health including strategies for gaining political and stakeholder input and support for science based ecosystem management The final part Case Studies reports experiences of interdisciplinary teams grappling with specific issues in a variety of aquatic and terrestrial ecosystems Water for Food Water for Life David Molden,2013-07-23 Managing water resources is one of the most pressing challenges of our times fundamental to how we feed 2 billion more people in coming decades eliminate poverty and reverse ecosystem degradation This Comprehensive Assessment of Water Management in Agriculture involving more than 700 leading specialists evaluates current thinking on water and its interplay with agriculture to help chart the way forward It offers actions for water management and water policy to ensure more equitable and effective use This assessment describes key water food environment trends that influence our lives today and uses scenarios to explore the consequences of a range of potential investments It aims to inform investors and policymakers about water and food choices in light of such crucial influences as poverty ecosystems governance and productivity It covers rainfed agriculture irrigation groundwater marginal quality water fisheries livestock rice land and river basins Ample tables graphs and references make this an invaluable work for practitioners academics researchers and policymakers in water management agriculture conservation and development Published with IWMI

Global Monitoring Report 2008 World Bank,2008-04-14 Global Monitoring Report 2008 the fifth in an annual series is essential reading for those who wish to follow the global development agenda and debate in 2008 The year marks the midpoint toward the 2015 deadline for achieving the Millennium Development Goals MDGs It is also an important year to work toward a consensus on how the world is going to respond to the challenge of climate change building on the foundation laid at the Bali climate change conference in December 2007 The report spans this agenda It provides a comprehensive assessment of progress toward the MDGs and related policies and actions It addresses the challenge of climate change and environmental sustainability and assesses its implications for development The report s assessment of MDGs at midpoint presents a mixed picture one of both significant progress and formidable challenges The first MDG reducing extreme poverty by half is likely to be met at the global level thanks to a remarkable surge in global economic growth over the past decade But on current trends the human development MDGs are unlikely to be met Prospects are gravest for the goals of reducing child and maternal mortality but shortfalls are also likely in the primary school completion nutrition and sanitation MDGs The potential effects of climate change compound the challenge of achieving the development goals and sustaining progress The report s messages are clear urgent action is needed to help the world get back on track to achieve the MDGs and urgent action is also needed to combat climate change that threatens the well being of all countries but particularly of poor countries and poor people The goals of development and environmental sustainability are closely related and the paths to those goals have important synergies Researches of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism Carnegie Institution of Washington.
