Dalai Lama and his people and the growing respect for their efforts to free their homeland from Chinese occupation have made Tibet's political and cultural status a pressing issue in international affairs. So has the realization by nations including the United States that their geopolitical interests would best be served by the defeat of the Chinese and the achievement of Tibetan self-determination. Beyond Shangri La provides unique insight into the efforts of the U.S. government and committed U.S. citizens to support a free Tibet.

The Yangtze Valley and Beyond Isabella Bird Bishop, 1899 Beyond the Bataan Death March Dana Berry Frazee, 2025-12-15 K. L. Kearie Lee Berry was a star athlete at the University of Texas at Austin from 1912 to 1916 playing on the undefeated national championship football team of 1914. He began his military career with postings along the Mexican border. Berry served as an officer and advisor overseas including an assignment in Siberia just after the Bolshevik Revolution where he was a member of the 27th Infantry Wolfhounds of the American Expeditionary Force. Prior to and during World War II he was stationed in China and the Philippines where he was captured by the Japanese army on Bataan in 1942. He survived the infamous Bataan Death March and was incarcerated in various POW camps over a period of forty months until his liberation in August 1945. Upon returning to his home state Berry was promoted to brigadier general serving one more year as an active duty officer before retiring in 1947. He didn't stay retired for long he was appointed as Adjutant General of the Texas Military Department just five days after leaving the military and it was a post he went on to hold for fourteen years. Upon his second retirement in 1961 he served as president of the University of Texas's Forty Acres Club now Forty Acres Society. He remained active with various alumni activities of the University of Texas until his death in 1965. Dana Berry Frazee, granddaughter of K. L. Berry, has prepared this biography with the aid of her grandfather's POW journal and considerable outside research. What unfolds in the pages of Beyond the Bataan Death March: The Life and Times of K. L. Berry is a story of honor, courage, and dedicated service over a lifetime and often under the most difficult of conditions.

Beyond the May Fourth Paradigm Kai-wing Chow, Tze-ki Hon, Hung-yok Ip, Don C. Price, 2008-04-18 When did China make the decisive turn from tradition to modernity? For decades the received wisdom would have pointed to the May Fourth movement with its titanic battles between the champions of iconoclasm and the traditionalists and its shift to more populist forms of politics. A growing body of recent research has however called into question how decisive the turn was when it happened and what relation the resulting modernity bore to the agendas of people who might have considered themselves representatives of such an iconoclastic movement. Having thus explicitly or implicitly decentered the May Fourth, such research augmented by contributions in the present volume leaves us with the task of accounting for the shape Chinese modernity took as the product of dialogues and debates between and the interplay of a variety of actors and trends both within and certainly no less importantly without the May Fourth camp.
