Writing and Learning in the Science Classroom Carolyn S. Wallace, Brian B. Hand, Vaughan Prain, 2004-05-19 This volume is of interest to science educators graduate students and classroom teachers The book will also be an important addition to any scholarly library focusing on science education science literacy and writing This book is unique in that it synthesizes the research of the three leading researchers in the field of writing to learn science Carolyn S Wallace Brian Hand and Vaughan Prain It includes a comprehensive review of salient literature in the field detailed reports of the authors own research studies and current and future issues on writing in science The book is the first to definitely answer the question Does writing improve science learning Further it provides evidence for some of the mechanisms through which learning occurs It combines both theory and practice in a unique way Although primarily a tool for research classroom teachers will also find many practical suggestions for using writing in the science classroom Writing and Learning in Cross-national Perspective David Foster, 2017-10-03 Despite the increasingly global implications of conversations about writing and learning U S composition studies has devoted little attention to cross national perspectives on student writing and its roles in wider cultural contexts Caught up in our own concerns about how U S students make the transition as writers from secondary school to postsecondary education we often overlook the fact that students around the world are undergoing the same evolution How do the students in China England France Germany Kenya or South Africa the educational systems represented in this collection write their way into the communities of their chosen disciplines How for instance do students whose mother tongue is not the language of instruction cope with the demands of academic and discipline specific writing And in what ways is U S students development as academic writers similar to or different from that of students in other countries With this collection editors David Foster and David R Russell broaden the discussion about the role of writing in various educational systems and cultures Students development as academic writers raises issues of student authorship and agency as well as larger issues of educational access institutional power relations system goals and students roles in society The contributors to this collection discuss selected writing purposes and forms characteristic of a specific national education system describe students agency as writers and identify contextual factors social economic linguistic cultural that shape institutional responses to writing development In discussions that bookend these studies of different educational structures the editors compare U S postsecondary writing practices and pedagogies with those in other national systems and suggest new perspectives for cross national study of learning writing issues important to all educational systems Given the worldwide increase in students entering higher education and the endless need for effective writing across disciplines and nations the insights offered here and the call for further studies are especially welcome and timely Writers INC, 2001 Handbook helps students to find information quickly and easily Writing and Learning Anne Ruggles Gere, 1985 From the preface There are two major sections in this book reflecting the difference between learning to write and writing to show learning

The first part of the book concentrates on learning to write It begins with a discussion of what writing is suggests ways of starting to write considers the role of audience in writing and then examines strategies for drafting These strategies are arranged in order of difficulty and each builds on the previous one so that for example argument or writing to convince includes strategies of narration and explanation Exploratory writing comes last in this section because it is the most difficult and inclusive kind of writing The exercises throughout these chapters provide opportunities to use what has just been learned and suggestions for further writing invite more extensive prose Part two focuses on writing to show learning by discussing strategies for revising These strategies include reseeing entire pieces of writing in terms of organization cohesion and style reshaping paragraphs and sentences and polishing writing to conform with conventions of spelling punctuation capitalization usage and accepted formats such as documentation style The index provides easy reference for questions about writing page ix
