Something's Wrong in Paradise Arnie Greenberg, 2013-02-26 is a work of fiction set in The Cayman Islands It concerns a diabolical plot by the government of Guatemala to steal the lists of people from around the world who deposited money often illicitly in Cayman banks as a shield against payment of taxes Tom Shaw a private investigator from Detroit goes to Grand Cayman to transfer money on behalf of Lisa Brewster whose wealthy husband had been kidnapped in Guatemala Tom and Robin a local lady and her friends become involved in stopping a bizarre plot by an unusual group of very sadistic people They are gangsters robbers thieves liars pirates or PICAROONS You will learn something of a beautiful group of islands and in the end be surprised as never before State Department Security--1963-1965, Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on the Judiciary, 1966 The Epistemology of Desire and the Problem of Nihilism Allan Hazlett, 2024-07-12 Most people have wondered whether anything really matters some have temporarily thought that nothing really matters and some philosophers have defended the view that nothing really matters However if someone thinks that nothing matters if they are a nihilist about value then it seems that it is irrational for them to care about anything It seems that nihilism about value mandates total indifference This is the problem of nihilism Allan Hazlett addresses in The Epistemology of Desire and the Problem of Nihilism Hazlett argues that the problem of nihilism arises because desire and thus caring is a species of evaluation that admits of irrationality This contradicts the influential Humean view that desire does not admit of irrationality which has a ready solution to the problem of nihilism since desire does not admit of irrationality it cannot be irrational to care about something that you believe does not matter However following G E Anscombe Hazlett argues that desire has the same relationship to goodness as belief has to truth just as truth is the accuracy condition for belief goodness is the accuracy condition for desire This reveals desire as an appropriate target of epistemological inquiry in the same way that belief is an appropriate target of epistemological inquiry Desires can amount to knowledge in the same way that beliefs can amount to knowledge and crucially for the problem of nihilism desire admits of irrationality in the same way that belief admits of irrationality Nevertheless although it is obviously irrational to believe something that you believe is not true Hazlett argues that it is not irrational to desire something you believe is not good despite the fact that goodness is the accuracy condition for desire This provides a solution to the problem of nihilism and shows that nihilism about value can coherently be combined with the anti Humean view that desire is a species of evaluation
