ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS The authors would like to acknowledge assistance received in the compilation of relevant statistical and analytical information from the Confederation of University Faculty Associations of BC the Federation of Post Secondary Educators of BC formerly the College Institute Educators Association the Canadian Federation of Students and the Canadian Association of University Teac The content opinions and any errors in this paper are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the views of the CCPA It considers two aspects of operating funding the amount of operating funding for students that are in the system and the amount required to support greater capacity the number of seats in the system Next we review the data on provincial grants to post secondary institutions accounting for changes in the number of seats in the post secondary system and for inflation With regard to public financing of the post secondary system we are interested in both the amount of funding for students in the system and because there are far fewer seats than potential students the amount of funding that goes toward increasing capacity or the number of seats in the system House Document,

Funding Surface Transportation in Minnesota Zhirong Zhao, 2010 Transportation systems play an imperative role in enhancing the productivity and the quality of life in the United States The funding and financing of transportation is a complex process requiring joint efforts of federal state and local governments To meet current and future transportation needs policymakers must constantly assess the mechanism of transportation finance to ensure adequate and sustainable investment In recent years depleting state and local budgets and growing capital and maintenance costs related to transportation have been a common challenge The state of Minnesota is estimated to have billions in unmet transportation needs to keep up with inflation and the increase in transportation demands This report reviews the funding of public surface transportation systems including highways transit and local roads in Minnesota We look at how transportation projects have been funded identify current and future policy issues likely to affect transportation funding and go over some of the funding options suggested by other researchers The aim is to encourage better understanding and management of issues related to transportation funding in Minnesota
