Stevenage Past:

Humane Readings Jason Finch, Martin Gill, Anthony Johnson, Iris Lindahl-Raittila, Inna Lindgren, Tuija Virtanen, Brita Wårvik, 2009-12-10 Since the 1980s Roger D Sell's literary criticism has striven to take account of the often conflicting approaches available without compromising the human importance of the literary work either in terms of its creation or its reception Sell's theory of literature draws strength from the interface between literary studies and linguistics and is grounded on the argument that literary making is a primary communicational act between human beings Other critics have found Sell's work inspirational This book both responds to Sell's ideas and demonstrates the multifaceted potential of his work Aware of his trajectory through Literary Pragmatic Humanizing and Mediating criticism Humane Readings offers a series of original and focused studies which demonstrate the power provenance and importance of Sell's approach Ranging in subject matter from the Early Modern Period to the present a reconfiguration of literary criticism by contemporary readers and practitioners is urged here Case studies are presented on a range of poetic novelistic dramatic and children's works Each illuminates different aspects of Sell's critical thought

The Peaceful Path Stephen V. Ward, 2016-03-14 The title of this book is taken from Ebenezer Howard's visionary tract To-morrow A Peaceful Path to Real Reform Published in 1898 as a manifesto for social reform via the creation of Garden Cities it proposed a new way of providing cheap and healthy homes workplaces and green spaces in balance in cohesive new communities underpinned by radical ideas about collective land ownership While Howard's vision had international impact in this book planning historian Stephen Ward largely honors the special place that Hertfordshire occupies on the peaceful path beginning with the development of Letchworth and Welwyn Garden Cities Both were established with Howard's personal involvement and slowly achieved most of his aims both also emerged as havens for liberal minded creative largely temperate communities Stephen Ward then recounts in detail how the New Towns programme was created by the post war British Government as an alternative way of realising Howard's vision Although state involvement was not what Howard had wanted the new approach overcame financial problems to allow faster development while maintaining the principle of collective though no longer local land ownership During this dynamic era of new thinking in all areas of government Hertfordshire was once again in the vanguard with bold and imaginative New Towns that met real social needs being created at Stevenage and Hemel Hempstead as well as at Hatfield and Welwyn Garden City By 2011 over a quarter of Hertfordshire's population lived in its Garden Cities and New Towns Nowhere else in the UK or indeed the world came so close to Howard's dream The Garden City idea was admired globally inspiring innovative planned settlements from Scandinavia to the United States from the USSR to Australia Yet this is not just a work of history The Peaceful Path also examines the contemporary relevance of Howard's vision Today's politicians faced with a severe housing shortfall and rampant property prices in London and other hotspots are again turning to the idea of the Garden City Howard's vision endures
