Shell guide to SURREY

For all its neat houses and gardens and disciplined woods and beacons under the care of the National Trust, Surrey is still the county of exquisite variety, hills and valleys, wood and downland, forest and chalk, moorly benches and green slopes (Box Hill, for example, with its mass of wild box trees), pine and birch, gorse (1) and bluebell, whortleberry (2) and wild strawberries. It is a county for chalkland flowers such as marjoram, rampion (abundant by the racemose at Epsom) and yellow-wort; for dark old yew; for nightingales (3), warblers, and nightjars (4).

Low on the fir-branch, his rattle-note unswayed, Bending o'er the glass, spins the brown bee-jar wrote one of Surrey's poets, George Merdith, who lived at Box Hill, about the nightjars of Surrey heathland. Great chalk quarries provided lime for building and rebuilding London in past centuries. There is a London note in Victorian villas and churches (the spire in the picture is of Westcott Church (1), near Dorking, one of several Surrey churches by the Victorian paragon, Sir Gilbert Scott). But though London fills it at night and at weekends, Surrey has contributed more than most counties to English gardening. It houses Kew Gardens and the Wisley Gardens of the Royal Horticultural Society. John Evelyn (1620-1706), gardener, diarist, dilettante, author of Acetaria (on salads) and Sylva (on trees), lived at Wotton, under Leith Hill. Gertrude Jekyll (1843-1932) lived, gardened and wrote her gardening books in west Surrey, where she developed the English herbaceous border under the influence of Impressionist painters.

Surrey A Shell Guide:

A Shell Guide to Surrey Bruce Watkin, 1977 Quality and Experiment Orde Levinson, John Piper, 1996 Punch, 1960-11 John Betjeman Greg Morse, 2012 John Betjeman was undoubtedly the most popular Poet Laureate since Tennyson but beneath the thoroughly modern window on Britain that he opened during his lifetime lay the influence of his nineteenth century forbears This book explores his identity through such Victorianism via the verse of that period but also its architecture religious faith and more importantly religious doubt It was nevertheless a process which took time In the 1930s Betjeman s work was tinted with modernism and traditionalism He found Victorian buildings funny and wrote much in praise of the Bauhaus style even though his early poetry was peppered with Victorian references This leaning was incorporated into a greater sense of purpose during World War 2 when he transformed himself from precious humorist into propagandist The resulting sense of cohesion grew when the dangers of post war urban redevelopment heightened the need to critique the present via the poetics of the past a mood which continued up to and beyond his gaining the Laureateship in 1972 This duty proved to be a millstone so the official poems are thus explored by the author more fully than hitherto The conclusion of looks back to Betjeman s 1960 verse autobiography Summoned by Bells which is seen as the apogee of his achievement and a snapshot of his identity Included here is the first critical appreciation of the lyrics embodied within the text which are taken as a map of the young poet s literary growth Larkin s 1959 question What exactly is Betjeman then leads to a final appraisal of his originality as evidenced by his glances towards postmodernism feminism and post colonialism The fact is that Betjeman never quite fits in anywhere He is always a square peg in a round hole or a round peg in a square hole often for the sheer enjoyment of so being In a sense his desire to be as non conformist as a Quaker meeting house makes him a radical rather than the reactionary that his interests imply He was a champion of beauty and the British Isles and clearly did much to make us see the worth of our Victorian forebears Greg Morse s book highlights this important facet of his work Bulletin, 1984
