How does hope manifest itself for young people on the margins of society In this book young people talk about their hopes and fears for the future the possibility of leading a full life They illustrate those hopes and fears in images and drawings of people and places meaningful to them We learn that they are both typical of young people everywhere desiring love family the prospect of work yet different in that achieving those aims may involve pathways of proscribed even criminal behaviours Through these moving often raw stories and images we gain insights into the everyday and imaginary worlds of marginalised young people We also hear from their teachers and others who work with them attempting to build lost relationships and trust The members of the research team who worked with these people also contribute their thoughts arguing that a truly sustainable society is not possible until the thoughts and opinions of all are taken into account      Munsey's Magazine for ..., 1917      Adventure, 1911      The Chase, 1924      The Southwestern Reporter, 1912      From Father to Son Mary Stanbery Watts, 1919      New York Court of Appeals.
