The Politics of Defeat Churba,1977 The Politics of Defeat Joseph Churba,1977 Strategic Surrender Paul Kecskemeti,1959 The Politics of Defeat, Campaigning for Congress Robert Jack Huckshorn,Robert Clark Spencer,1971 The Politics of Defeat Robert J. Huckshorn,Robert C. Spencer,1971-06 Strategicurrender Gerhard Ritter,1958 The politics of autocracy Alexander,2019-04-15 No detailed description available for The politics of autocracy The Politics of Regret Jeffrey K. Olick,2013-10-31 In the past decade Jeffrey Olick has established himself as one of the world s pre eminent sociologists of memory and related to this both cultural sociology and social theory His recent book on memory in postwar Germany In the House of the Hangman University of Chicago Press 2005 has garnered a great deal of acclaim This book collects his best essays on a range of memory related issues and adds a couple of new ones It is more conceptually expansive than his other work and will serve as a great introduction to this important theorist In the past quarter century the issue of memory has not only become an increasingly important analytical category for historians sociologists and cultural theorists it has become pervasive in popular culture as well Part of this is a function of the enhanced role of both narrative and representation the building blocks of memory so to speak across the social sciences and humanities Just as importantly though there has also been an increasing acceptance of the notion that the past is no longer the province of professional historians alone Additionally acknowledging the importance of social memory has not only provided agency to ordinary people when it comes to understanding the past it has made conflicting interpretations of the meaning of the past more fraught particularly in light of the terrible events of the twentieth century Olick looks at how catastrophic terrible pasts Nazi Germany apartheid South Africa are remembered but he is particularly concerned with the role that memory plays in social structures Memory can foster any number of things social solidarity nostalgia civil war but it always depends on both the nature of the past and the cultures doing the remembering Prior to his studies of individual episodes he fully develops his theory of memory and society working through Bergson Halbwachs Elias Bakhtin and Bourdieu Foreign Pressure and the Politics of Autocratic Survival Abel Escribà-Folch,Joseph Wright,2015-09-17 Can coercive foreign policy destabilize autocratic regimes Can democracy be promoted from abroad This book examines how foreign policy tools such as aid economic sanctions human rights shaming and prosecutions and military intervention influence the survival of autocratic regimes Foreign pressure destabilizes autocracies through three mechanisms limiting the regime s capacity to maintain support undermining its repressive capacity and altering the expected utility of stepping down for political elites Foreign Pressure and the Politics of Autocratic Survival distinguishes between three types of autocracies personalist rule party based regimes and military dictatorships These distinct institutional settings influence the dictators strategies for surviving in power as well as the propensity with which their leaders are punished after a regime transition Consequently the influence of foreign pressure varies across autocratic regime types Further the authors show that when foreign coercion destabilizes an autocracy this does not always lead to democratic regime change because different regimes breakdown in distinct ways While democratization is often equated with the demise of autocratic rule it is just one possible outcome after an autocratic regime collapses Many times instead of democratization externally induced regime collapse means that a new dictatorship replaces the old one This theory is tested against an extensive analysis of all dictatorships since 1946 and historical cases which trace the causal process in instances where foreign policy tools helped oust dictatorships Oxford Studies in Democratization is a series for scholars and students of comparative politics and related disciplines Volumes concentrate on the comparative study of the democratization process that accompanied the decline and termination of the cold war The geographical focus of the series is primarily Latin America the Caribbean Southern and Eastern Europe and relevant experiences in Africa and Asia The series editor is Laurence Whitehead Senior Research Fellow Nuffield College University of Oxford

The Politics and Culture of an Umayyad Tribe Mohammad Rihan, 2014-06-04 The Umayyad caliphate ruling over much of what is now the modern Middle East after the death of the Prophet Muhammad governed from Damascus from 661 to 750 CE when they were expelled by the Abbasids Here Mohammad Rihan sheds light on the tribal system of this empire by looking at one of its Syrian tribes the Amila based around today's Jabal Amil in southern Lebanon Using this tribe as a lens through which to examine the wider Umayyad world he looks at the political structures and conflicts that prevailed at the time seeking to nuance the understanding of the relationship between the tribes and the ruling elite For Rihan early Islamic political history can only be understood in the context of the tribal history This book thus illustrates how the political and social milieu of the Amila tribe sheds light on the wider history of the Umayyad world Utilizing a wide range of sources from the books of genealogies to poetry Rihan expertly portrays Umayyad political life First providing a background on Amila's tribal structure and its functions and dynamics Rihan then presents the pre-Islamic past of the tribe Building on this he then investigates the role the Amila played in the emergence of the Umayyad state to understand the ways in which political life developed for the tribes and their relations with those holding political power in the region By exploring the literature culture kinship structures and the socio-political conditions of the tribe this book highlights the ways in which alliances and divisions shifted and were used by caliphs of the period and offers new insights into the Middle East at a pivotal point in its early and medieval history This historical analysis thus not only illuminates the political condition of the Umayyad world but also investigates the ever-important relationship between tribal political structures and state-based rule

The Politics of Imperial Memory in France, 1850-1900 Christina B. Carroll, 2022-05-15 By highlighting the connections between domestic political struggles and overseas imperial structures The Politics of Imperial Memory in France 1850-1900 explains how and why French Republicans embraced colonial conquest as a central part of their political platform Christina B. Carroll explores the meaning and value of empire in late nineteenth-century France arguing that ongoing disputes about the French state's political organization intersected with racialized beliefs about European superiority over colonial others in French imperial thought For much of this period French writers and politicians did not always differentiate between continental and colonial empire By employing a range of sources from newspapers and pamphlets to textbooks and novels Carroll demonstrates that the memory of older continental imperial models shaped French understandings of and justifications for their new colonial empire She shows that the slow identification of the two types of empire emerged due to a politicized campaign led by colonial advocates who sought to defend overseas expansion against their opponents This new model of colonial empire was shaped by a complicated set of influences including political conflict the legacy of both Napoleons international competition racial science and French experiences in the colonies The Politics of Imperial Memory in France 1850-1900 skillfully weaves together knowledge from its wide ranging source base to articulate how the meaning and history of empire became deeply intertwined with the meaning and history of the French nation

Unfinished Places: The Politics of (Re)making Cairo's Old Quarters Gehan Selim, 2016-11-10 The Emerging Politics of Re making Cairo s Old Quarters examines postcolonial planning practices that aimed to modernise Cairo s urban spaces The author examines the expanding field of postcolonial urbanism by linking the state s political ideologies and systems of governance with methods of spatial representations that aimed to transform the urban realm in Cairo Adopting an interdisciplinary approach the study draws on planning history and politics to develop a distinctive account of postcolonial planning in Cairo following Egypt s 1952 revolution The book widely connects the ideological role of a different type of politicised urbanism practised during the days of Nasser Sadat and Mubarak and the overarching policies institutions and attitudes involved in the visions for re building a new nation in Egypt By examining the notion of remaking urban spaces the study interprets the ambitions and powers of state policies for improving the spatial qualities of Cairo s old districts since the early 20th century These acts are situated in their spatial political and historical contexts of Cairo s heterogeneous old quarters and urban spaces particularly the remaking of one of the city s older quarts named Bulaq Abul Ela established during the Ottoman rule in the thirteenth century It therefore writes in a chronological sequence a narrative through time and space connecting various layers of historical and contemporary political phases for remaking Bulaq The endeavor is to explain this process from a spatial perspective in terms of the implications and consequences not only on places but also on the people s everyday practices By deeply investigating the problems and consequences the strengths and weaknesses and the state s reliability to achieve the remaking objectives the book reveals evidence that shifting forms of governance had anchored planning practices into a narrow path of creativity and responsive planning

The Politics of Faith and the Politics of Scepticism Michael Oakeshott, 1996-01-01 Michael Oakeshott the foremost British political philosopher of the twentieth century died in 1990 leaving a substantial collection of unpublished material Yale University Press is continuing to make available the best of these illuminating works In this polished and hitherto unknown work Oakeshott argues that modern politics was constituted out of a debate persistent through centuries of European political experience down to our own day over the question What should governments do According to Oakeshott two different answers have dominated our thought since the fifteenth century One exemplified by such thinkers as Rousseau and Marx expresses a belief in the capacity of human beings to control design and monitor all aspects of social and political life a belief fostered by the intoxicating increase in power available to governments in modern times On the other hand sceptics such as Montaigne Pascal and Hobbes argued that governments cannot in principle produce perfection and that we should prevent concentrations of power that may result in tyrannies that oppress the dignity of the human spirit Oakeshott exposes the pitfalls of both positions and shows the value of a middle ground that incorporates scepticism with enough faith to avoid total quietism Readers of Oakeshott will find here the thinking that lies behind his famous definition of politics as the pursuit of intimations
