William Richard Lethaby. A Paper Read Before the Art Workers Guild ... 1932 Robert W. S. WEIR,William Richard Lethaby,1938 Architecture. Mysticism and Myth William Richard Lethaby,2012-12-19 The history of architecture as usually written with its theory of utilitarian origins from the hut and the tumulus and further developments in that way the adjustment of forms to the conditions of local circumstance the clay of Mesopotamia the granite of Egypt and marble of Greece is rather the history of building of Architecture it may be in the sense we so often use the word but not the Architecture which is the synthesis of the fine arts the commune of all the crafts Behind every style of architecture there is an earlier style in which the germ of every form is to be found except such alterations as may be traced to new conditions or directly innovating thought in religion all is the slow change of growth and it is almost impossible to point to the time of invention of any custom or feature It will be necessary not only to examine architecture in the monuments but the contemporary statements which relate to them the stories about buildings and even the mythology of architecture for such a mythology there is If we trace the artistic forms of things made by man to their origin we find a direct imitation of nature The thought behind a ship is the imitation of a fish So to the Egyptians and Greeks the Black Ship bore traces of this descent and two eyes were painted at the prow The custom still lingers on the Mediterranean and on the waters of China the eyes are given it is said to enable the ship to see its way over the pathless sea Tables and chairs like the beasts are quadrupeds the lion s leg and foot of modern furniture come to us from the Greeks and earlier they were used in Assyria and Egypt The ritual side of symbolism is entirely neglected here but there is ample evidence that sacred ceremony the state that surrounded a throne and the pageant of war all had reference to the ritual and pomp of nature so that man might be one with her and share her invincible strength William Richard Lethaby, 1857-1931. Letters by William Richard Lethaby to Charles Hadfield, 1907-1915 , On various topics including architectural education and the poor state of civic amenities in England W.R. Lethaby, 1857-1931 William Richard Lethaby,1984 The Architectural Theory of William Richard Lethaby: xxxviii, leaves 1-446 Howard John Iber,2013 William Richard Lethaby was in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century a very well known English architect educator in the fields of architecture and design and historian of both architecture and art His interests and abilities ranged over a surprisingly large array of subjects and his influence in a number of areas was considerable While previous studies of Lethaby have offered valuable information and insights focusing on his biography on discussion of his architectural work and or an overall appreciation of his accomplishments it was thought worthwhile to make a more expanded study of Lethaby s thinking in order to see more clearly the main characteristics and how his different areas of interest tie together After some study of Lethaby s writings what were perceived to be the principal areas into which his theory of architecture might most productively be grouped were selected for discussion. The resulting topics include Lethaby's views on past architecture, those on style and ornament in architecture, the relationship of architecture to the other arts, to engineering and science, how to deal with architectural artifacts, his thoughts about towns and cities, whether architecture could have a national essence, and more. Lethaby did not produce a formal theoretical tract, so it was necessary to draw his theory out empirically, looking at his writing and work in the various subject areas. Besides his writings in periodicals and books, an attempt was made in the interest of a more enhanced view to also review Lethaby's correspondence, where possible, with others, his subjects and notations in his sketchbooks, and to study his architectural and other design work to see how this related to his thinking. Lethaby was known for his aphorisms, which capture his thinking in a very succinct and memorable way. More extensive passages in his writing are also compelling and inimitable, and it was thought that the inclusion of a good number of Lethaby's own words in this study could bring an even closer understanding. An attempt was made to point out where it occurred when Lethaby's thinking changed over time or did not. The main results of this study center around two main points. The most important concerns documenting and further exploring the extensive interconnectedness of his thinking on one subject with another. Lethaby was interested in this, for example, in questions of how knowledge of the past could be relevant to the present and future, how the artisan, builder, architect, and engineer were to relate, and the extension of the quintessential Arts and Crafts dedication to total design, from knives and forks to door hinges to room decor and a building's style and ornament. Lethaby was notable in expanding this integrative view to the larger scale of towns and cities, as well. The second point involves a more developed discussion of the evolution of Lethaby's thinking regarding the role of the machine in the production of the built environment, and more, as to how he, as a leading spokesman in England of Arts and Crafts philosophy, could come to an accommodation with certain qualifications with mass production. The study also discusses more thoroughly how Lethaby's interest in integration produced a new kind of education in architecture and design, a type which led to important results abroad, with the Deutscher Werkbund and Bauhaus. An Appendix reviews how the English Arts and Crafts point of view, with Lethaby as one of its more important spokesmen, is related to later architectural developments abroad.
