

Statius Silvae 4. 9: Libertas Decembris?

CYNTHIA DAMON

The last poem of Statius' 4th book of Silvae is generally taken to be a Saturnalia-inspired reproach directed at a well-connected patronus by a poet who has come off rather the worse in an exchange of gifts. The connections with Catullus' 14th poem—a poem in which Catullus commemorates a Saturnalia gift-book—and with Martial's complaints about meagre gifts from patrons have been noted.<sup>1</sup> It has even been argued that in Silvae 4. 9 Statius makes use of the license of the season to produce a poem in which "he accuses his addressee of a lack of literary taste."<sup>2</sup> A closer examination of the "parallels" in Martial, together with a glance at Statius' other poems in hendecasyllables (Silvae 1. 6, 2. 7, 4. 3), will reveal some of the problems which arise if one reads the poem this way. By defining the tone of Silvae 4. 9 in terms of the distance between it and the poems in which Catullus chaffs his literarily inclined friends one can get a better sense of the délicatesse that Statius applies in managing his relations with Plotius Grypus.

The epigrams in which Martial expresses a sense of injury at having received a gift of little market value, parallel to 4. 9 as they appear at first glance, are in fact all addressed to fictitious donors and celebrate the poet's ingenuity, not the receipt of real, if paltry, gifts. On the disappointing half-pound of pepper sent by the "Sextus" who had sent a pound of silver the <sup>2</sup> K. M. Coleman, "Silvae 4. 9: A Statian Name-Game," PACA 14 (1978) 9–10. She continues: "in addressing his accusation to a Grypus, Statius uses the associations of 'nasutus' to draw attention to sensibilities which are noticeably lacking in Plotius." In her more recent commentary (previous note) she is less precise about who the target of the poem, which she calls "a satire on poor literary taste and the absence of social graces," is. Her final remark on the tone of the poem, that "in all, the teasing note, familiar from Catullus (and also Cicero and Horace), is not meant to be taken seriously," is too much ex cathedra; it is my aim to show how Statius' teasing differs from that of Catullus.

Statius: Silvae Book II Statius, 2011-02-17 With the exception of a poem on the unscripted death of a lion in the Colosseum Book II of Statius Silvae is largely domestic in theme It reflects the more private side of Roman culture its pleasures houses gardens friendships and personal losses it concludes with a provocative tribute to the poet Lucan Despite its variety the book is carefully constructed as a unit and this edition which is suitable for use with advanced students puts the book into its context in the history of Greek and Roman poetry The commentary takes into account the important work done on the text of the Silvae in the past two decades as well as the new perspectives brought to bear on Flavian culture by historians and archaeologists It explores Statius use of the short poem as a playful engagement with literary tradition that also reflects changing ideas of Roman cultural identity Statius' Silvae and the Poetics of Empire Carole E. Newlands, 2002-03-14 Statius Silvae written late in the reign of Domitian AD 81-96 are a new kind of poetry that confronts the challenge of imperial majesty or private wealth by new poetic strategies and forms As poems of praise they delight in poetic excess whether they honour the emperor or the poet's friends Yet extravagant speech is also capacious speech It functions as a strategy for conveying the wealth and grandeur of villas statues and precious works of art as well as the complex emotions aroused by the material and political culture of empire The Silvae are the product of a divided self fashioning voice Statius was born in Naples of non aristocratic parents His position as outsider to the culture he celebrates gives him a unique perspective on it The Silvae are poems of anxiety as well as praise expressive of the tensions within the later period of Domitian's reign P. Papinius Statius, Silvae Book II Harm-Jan Van Dam, 1984 Includes Latin text of Silvae book II The Poetic World of Statius' Silvae Michael Putnam, PROF MICHAEL. PUTNAM, 2023 In the essays of this volume Michael Putnam shows how seriously Statius pays homage to his canonical predecessor Virgil how thoroughly he interprets the complexities of Virgilian poetry and how he often by placing a Virgilian reference in a different social and cultural context boldly turns Virgil to new and more positive purposes He focuses particularly though not exclusively on those Silvae which deal with the architectural world of Statius society the private villas the gardens and the imperial palace He also writes of the Roman equivalent of the Grand Tour a young man's educational journey through the monuments of Egypt Greece and Asia Minor The essays offer valuable insight into the cultural and social identity of late first century imperial Rome Statius reverential but also heuristic engagement with Virgil emerges more distinctly across the interrelated essays Putnam's collected essays display the pioneering nature of Statius Silvae in the development of ecphrasis as an important social and literary mode in Roman poetry The Silvae of Statius Publius Papinius Statius, 2004 Written during the 1st century AD Statius Silvae praises or pays tribute to a number of individuals most notably the emperor Domitian whom Statius refers to as a living god The Silvae of Statius Stephen Thomas Newmyer, 2018-08-14 Preliminary Material Stephen Thomas Newmyer Introduction Stephen Thomas Newmyer Tradition and Originality in the Silvae Stephen Thomas Newmyer
