Donn Byrne,2017-10-12 Excerpt from The Wind Bloweth He left the main road and turned into a loaning that came down the mountain side a thing that once might have been a road if there had been any need for it or energy to make it But now it was only a wedge of common land bounded on both sides by a low stone wall Inside one wall was a path and inside the other a little rill and betwixt the two of them were firm moss and stones And here the moss was yellowish green and there red as blood And the rill was edged with ferns and queer blue owers whose names he did not know in English and now the water just gurgled over the rounded stones and now it dropped into a well where it was colourless and cold and fresh as the air itself and oftentimes at the bottom of a pool like that would be a great green frog with eyes that popped like the schoolmaster s About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Baptisma John Lathern,1889 Luther League Review ,1909 ...
