Software projects; pedagogical aids for software education and research John J. Donovan, Stuart E. Madnick, 1977
How Computers Entered the Classroom, 1960-2000 Carmen Flury, Michael Geiss, 2023-06-19 In the history of education the question of how computers were introduced into European classrooms has so far been largely neglected This edited volume strives to address this gap The contributions shed light on the computerization of education from a historical perspective by attending closely to the different actors involved such as politicians computer manufacturers teachers and students political rationales and ideologies as well as financial political or organizational structures and relations The case studies highlight differences in political and economic power as well as in ideological reasoning and the priorities set by different stakeholders in the process of introducing computers into education However the contributions also demonstrate that simple cold war narratives fail to capture the complex dynamics and entanglements in the history of computers as an educational technology and a subject taught in schools The edited volume thus provides a comprehensive historical understanding of the role of education in an emerging digital society

September 1995 Emphasis was placed on technical aspects but new aspects of the software life cycle also appeared Among the technical issues it would seem that test methods are seeing a revival and simulation and modelling techniques are starting to be used for the project management process proper Within the software development life cycle re use and reverse engineering have become established components and reports on experience with the application of formal approaches are becoming more distinct An important topic covered was configuration mangement the more common it becomes for software to be developed as a system of components having individual life cycles rather than as one consistent piece then the more important it is to have methods for administering such components separately whilst still enabling the designer to build consistent systems out of them The workshop overall was rated better than average by participants and a good percentage of papers were recommended for publication in a journal It can also be said that the workshop reflected the improvement in technology transfer time in software and the coming of age of software engineering in general
