The Translator's Turn Douglas Robinson, 1991 Despite landmark works in translation studies such as George Steiner s After Babel and Eugene Nida s The Theory and Practice of Translation most of what passes as contemporary theory on the subject has been content to remain largely within the realm of the anecdotal Not so Douglas Robinson s ambitious book which despite its author s protests to the contrary makes a bid to displace the deconstructive term is apposite here a gamut of earlier cogitations on the subject reaching all the way back to Cicero Augustine and Jerome Robinson himself sums up the aim of his project in this way I want to displace the entire rhetoric and ideology of mainstream translation theory which is medieval and ecclesiastical in origin authoritarian in intent and denaturing and mystificatory in effect from <http://www.jstor.org> Sep 12 2014

India's Shakespeare: Translation, Interpretation and Performance

Poonam Trivedi, Dennis Bartholomeusz, 2005 India's Shakespeare Translation Interpretation and Performance is ideal for English literature performance translation studies. This collection of essays examines the diverse aspects of Shakespeare's interaction with India since two hundred years ago when the British first introduced him here. While the study of Shakespeare was an imperial imposition, the performance of Shakespeare was not. Shakespeare translated and adapted on the commercial stage during the late nineteenth century was widely successful and remains to this day the most published and performed western author in India. The important role Shakespeare has played in allowing cultures to speak with each other forms the center of this volume with contributions examining presence of Shakespeare in both colonial and post colonial India. The essays discuss the several contexts in which Shakespeare was read, taught, translated, performed and absorbed into the cultural fabric of India. The introduction details the history of this induction, its shifts and developments and its corresponding critical discourse in India and the west. This collection of essays emerging from first hand experience is presented from a variety of critical positions: performative, textual, historicist, feminist and post colonialist, as befits the range of the subject.

Teaching Literature in Translation Brian James Baer, Michelle Woods, 2022-07-29. The teaching of texts in translation has become an increasingly common practice but so too has the teaching of texts from languages and cultures with which the instructor may have little or no familiarity. The authors in this volume present a variety of pedagogical approaches to promote translation literacy and to address the distinct phenomenology of translated texts. The approaches set forward in this volume address the nature of the translator's task and how texts travel across linguistic and cultural boundaries in translation, including how they are packaged for new audiences with the aim of fostering critical reading practices that focus on translations as translations. The organizing principle of the book is the specific pedagogical contexts in which translated texts are being used, such as courses on a single work, survey courses on a single national literature or a single author and courses on world literature. Examples are provided from the widest possible variety of world languages and literary traditions as well as modes of writing: prose, poetry, drama, film and religious and historical texts with the aim that many of the pedagogical approaches and strategies can be easily adapted for use with other works and traditions. An introductory section by the editors Brian James Baer and Michelle Woods sets the theoretical stage for the volume. Written and edited by authorities in the field of literature and translation, this book is an essential manual for all instructors and lecturers in world and comparative literature and literary translation.

Helps for Translators, 1973 Translations by C. G. Celsus von Gierl, 1890 Translation and the Making of Modern Russian Literature Brian James Baer, 2015-11-19. Brian James Baer explores the central role played by translation in the construction of modern Russian literature. Peter I's policy of forced Westernization resulted in translation becoming a widely discussed and highly visible practice in Russia, a multi lingual empire with a polyglot elite Yet Russia's accumulation of cultural capital through translation occurred at a time when the Romantic obsession with originality was marginalizing translation as mere imitation The awareness on the part of Russian writers that their literature and by extension their cultural identity were born in translation produced a sustained and sophisticated critique of Romantic authorship and national identity that has long been obscured by the nationalist focus of traditional literary studies By offering a re-reading of seminal works of the Russian literary canon that thematize translation alongside studies of the circulation and reception of specific translated texts Translation and the Making of Modern Russian Literature models the long overdue integration of translation into literary and cultural studies
