

THYROID DISORDERS

What is the Thyroid?

The thyroid is a small gland that is shaped much like a butterfly (butterfly) and sits in the throat (throat). The thyroid gland sits just below the larynx. It makes hormones that regulate the normal function of many organs and tissues throughout the body and also controls growth and development.

When the thyroid is not working properly, called thyroid disorders, it can cause:

- Weight gain
- Weight loss
- Fatigue
- Nervousness
- Irritability
- Depression
- Hair loss
- Heat intolerance
- Constipation
- Dry skin
- Enlarged thyroid

Normal Hormone Production

The thyroid gland is controlled by the pituitary gland. When the level of thyroid hormones (T4) in the blood is low, the pituitary gland releases thyroid-stimulating hormone (TSH) to a gland called the anterior pituitary gland, which tells the thyroid gland to make more T4. If the level of thyroid hormones is high, the pituitary gland releases less TSH.

How to Check Your Thyroid

Ask your doctor about the best way to check your thyroid. If you have a thyroid problem, your doctor will do a physical exam.

1. While holding a mirror behind the neck, look at your neck and throat. Ask a friend to help you with your thyroid.

2. Tip your head back, while looking in the thyroid area in the mirror.

3. Take a drink of water from a glass and then sit up, straight in the seat while you swallow.

Overactive Thyroid

Overactive thyroid gland (hyperthyroidism)

- Bulging eyes
- Hyperreflexia (trembling hands)
- Tachycardia (racing heart)

Common Thyroid Disorders

Overactive Thyroid (Hyperthyroidism)

The most common type of thyroid disorder is when the thyroid makes too much of the thyroid hormone. This condition is called hyperthyroidism.

Graves' disease

One of the most common causes of overactive thyroid, especially among women, is Graves' disease. The immune system, which defends the body from infection, attacks the thyroid gland and causes it to produce too much thyroid hormone. This disease is an autoimmune disease, which means the immune system attacks the body's own tissues.

Thyroiditis (Hashimoto's)

When the immune system attacks the thyroid gland, it can cause the thyroid to produce too much thyroid hormone. This condition usually goes away and is usually not a permanent change in the thyroid.

Underactive Thyroid (Hypothyroidism)

The most common type of thyroid disorder is when the thyroid makes too little of the thyroid hormone.

Hashimoto's disease

The most common cause of underactive thyroid is Hashimoto's disease. The immune system attacks the thyroid gland and causes it to produce too little thyroid hormone. This disease is an autoimmune disease, which means the immune system attacks the body's own tissues.

Underactive Thyroid and pregnancy

A fetus depends on their mother's thyroid hormone for normal development. Having pregnancy-related thyroid problems can cause complications for the fetus, so it's important to check on your thyroid levels during pregnancy.

Underactive Thyroid

Underactive thyroid gland (hypothyroidism)

- Swollen neck
- Fatigue
- Dry skin

Thyroid Nodules and Cancer

- Nodule
- Cancer

Thyroid nodules are abnormal growths of thyroid cells. Most nodules are benign (not cancerous) and do not cause any problems. Some nodules can cause problems if they are large enough to cause symptoms or if they are cancerous.

Thyroid cancer is found in a small number of people with an underactive thyroid. It is usually found in the thyroid gland. The most common type of thyroid cancer is papillary thyroid cancer, which is usually found in the thyroid gland.
