The Tory Lover (1901). By: Sarah Orne Jewett Sarah Orne Jewett,2017-09-21 Sarah Orne Jewett September 3 1849 June 24 1909 was an American novelist short story writer and poet best known for her local color works set along or near the southern seacoast of Maine Jewett is recognized as an important practitioner of American literary regionalism Jewett s family had been residents of New England for many generations and Sarah Orne Jewett was born in South Berwick Maine Her father was a doctor specializing in obstetrics and diseases of women and children and Jewett often accompanied him on his rounds becoming acquainted with the sights and sounds of her native land and its people As treatment for rheumatoid arthritis a condition that developed in early childhood Jewett was sent on frequent walks and through them also developed a love of nature In later life Jewett often visited Boston where she was acquainted with many of the most influential literary figures of her day but she always returned to South Berwick small seaports near which were the inspiration for the towns of Deephaven and Dunnet Landing in her stories Jewett was educated at Miss Olive Rayne's school and then at Berwick Academy graduating in 1866. She supplemented her education through an extensive family library. Jewett was never overtly religious but after she joined the Episcopal church in 1871 she explored less conventional religious ideas. For example her friendship with Harvard law professor Theophilus Parsons stimulated an interest in the teachings of Emanuel Swedenborg, an eighteenth century Swedish scientist and theologian who believed that the Divine was present in innumerable joined forms, a concept underlying Jewett's belief in individual responsibility. She published her first important story in the Atlantic Monthly at age 19 and her reputation grew throughout the 1870s and 1880s. Her literary importance arises from her careful if subdued vignettes of country life that reflect a contemporary interest in local color rather than plot. Jewett possessed a keen descriptive gift that William Dean Howells called an uncommon feeling for talk I hear your people. Jewett made her reputation with the novella The Country of the Pointed Firs 1896. A Country Doctor 1884 a novel reflecting her father and her early ambitions for a medical career and A White Heron 1886 a collection of short stories are among her finest work. Some of Jewett's poetry was collected in Verses 1916 and she also wrote three children's books. Willa Cather described Jewett as a significant influence on her development as a writer and feminist critics have since championed her writing for its rich account of women's lives and voices. On September 3, 1902 Jewett was injured in a carriage accident that all but ended her writing career. She was paralyzed by a stroke in March 1909 and she died on June 24 after suffering another. The Georgian home of the Jewett family built in 1774 overlooking Central Square at South Berwick is now a National Historic Landmark and Historic New England museum called the Sarah Orne Jewett House. Jewett never married but she established a close friendship with writer Annie Adams Fields 1834-1915 and her husband publisher James Thomas Fields editor of the Atlantic Monthly. After the sudden death of James Fields in 1881 Jewett and Annie Fields lived together for the rest of Jewett's life in what was then termed a Boston marriage. Some modern scholars have speculated that the two were lovers. Both women found friendship, humor and literary encouragement in one another's company traveling to Europe together and hosting American and European literati. In France Jewett met Therese Blanc Bentzon with whom she had long corresponded and who translated some of her stories for publication in France. The Tory's Daughter Albert Gallatin Riddle, 1888 Book News, 1902 The International Studio, 1902 The Literary World, 1901 Literary World, 1900 Henry James's Feminist Afterlives Kathryn Wichelns, 2018-01-28. This book explores Henry James's negotiations with nineteenth century ideas about gender, sexuality, class and literary style through the responses of three women who have never before been substantively examined in light of their relationships to his work. Writing in different times and places Annie Fields, Emily Dickinson and Marguerite Duras nevertheless share complex navigations of womanhood and authorship as well as a history of feminist scholarly responses to their work. Kathryn Wichelns draws upon James' correspondence with Fields as well as Dickinson's and Duras's revisions of his fiction to offer a new understanding of gender transgressive elements of his project. By contextualizing his writing within a diverse set of feminist perspectives each grounded in a specific time and place as well as nineteenth century views of queer male sexuality Wichelns demonstrates the centrality of Henry James s ambivalent identifications with women to his work
