the devil for power experience pleasure and knowledge Doctor Faustus was first published in 1604 eleven years after Marlowe's death and at least twelve years after the first performance of the play It is the most controversial Elizabethan play outside of Shakespeare with few critics coming to any agreement as to the date or the nature of the text The Admiral's Men performed Doctor Faustus twenty five times in the three years between October 1594 and October 1597 On 22 November 1602 the Diary of Philip Henslowe recorded a 4 payment to Samuel Rowley and William Bird for additions to the play which suggests a revival soon after that date The powerful effect of the early productions is indicated by the legends that quickly accrued around them In Histrionomastix his 1632 polemic against the drama William Prynne records the tale that actual devils once appeared on the stage during a performance of Faustus to the great amazement of both the actors and spectators Some people were allegedly driven mad distracted with that fearful sight John Aubrey recorded a related legend that Edward Alleyn lead actor of The Admiral's Men devoted his later years to charitable endeavours like the founding of Dulwich College in direct response to this incident The play may have been entered into the Stationers Register on 18 December 1592 though the records are confused and appear to indicate a conflict over the rights to the play A subsequent Stationers Register entry dated 7 January 1601 assigns the play to the bookseller Thomas Bushnell the publisher of the 1604 first edition Bushnell transferred his rights to the play to John Wright on 13 September 1610 The two versions Two versions of the play exist The 1604 quarto printed by Valentine Simmes for Thomas Law sometimes termed the A text The title page attributes the play to Ch Marl A second edition A2 in 1609 printed by George Eld for John Wright is merely a reprint of the 1604 text The text is short for an English Renaissance play only 1485 lines long The 1616 quarto published by John Wright the enlarged and altered text sometimes called the B text This second text was reprinted in 1619 1620 1624 1631 and as late as 1663 The 1616 version omits 36 lines but adds 676 new lines making it roughly one third longer than the 1604 version Among the lines shared by both versions there are some small but significant changes in wording for example Never too late if Faustus can repent in the 1604 text becomes Never too late if Faustus will repent in the 1616 text a change that offers a very different possibility for Faustus's hope and repentance A major change between texts A and B is the name of the devil summoned by Faustus Text A states the name is generally Mephistophilis while the version of text B commonly states Mephostophilis The name of the devil is in each case a reference to Mephistopheles in Faustbuch the source work which appeared in English translation in about 1588 The relationship between the texts is uncertain and many modern editions print both As an Elizabethan playwright Marlowe had nothing to do with the publication and had no control over the play in performance so it was possible for scenes to be dropped or shortened or for new scenes to be added so that the resulting publications may be modified versions of the original script The 1604 version is believed by most scholars to be closer to the play as originally performed in Marlowe's lifetime and the 1616 version to be a posthumous adaptation by other hands However some disagree seeing the 1604 version as an abbreviation and the 1616 version as Marlowe's original fuller version

The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus Christopher Marlowe, 2021-04-28 Doctor Faustus a talented German scholar at Wittenburg rails against the limits of human knowledge He has learned everything he can learn or so he thinks from the conventional academic disciplines All of these things have left him unsatisfied so now he turns to magic A Good Angel and an Evil Angel arrive representing Faustus choice between Christian conscience and the path to damnation The former advises him to leave off this pursuit of magic and the latter tempts him From two fellow scholars Valdes and Cornelius Faustus learns the fundamentals of the black arts He thrills at the power he will have and the great feats he ll perform He summons the devil Mephostophilis They flesh out the terms of their agreement with Mephostophilis representing Lucifer Faustus will sell his soul in exchange for twenty four years of power with Mephostophilis as servant to his every whim In a comic relief scene we learn that Faustus servant Wagner has gleaned some magic learning He uses it to convince Robin the Clown to be his servant
