Life-Writing

from the Margins in Zimbabwe Oliver Nyambi, 2019-05-20 This book explores the unique contributions of various forms of post 2000 life writings such as the autobiography epistles and biographies to discourses about the nature and socio politics of what has become known as the Zimbabwean crisis c 2000 2009 Much of what has been written about the Zimbabwean crisis a decade long period of unprecedented economic collapse and political upheavals in the southern African country is strictly discipline specific and therefore limited to unidimensional modes of theorising the crisis s many and complex dimensions and dynamics In this context this book charts a paradigm shift in hermeneutic and epistemological approaches to comprehending the Zimbabwean crisis Life Writing from the Margins in Zimbabwe centres the experiences and memories of ordinary Zimbabweans in pluralizing modes of seeing and knowing the crisis The book argues that these life writings present a rich site for encountering versions of the crisis that relate in counter discursive ways to the dominant state authored narrative of the nation in crisis Oliver Nyambi s analysis contributes new ideas to ongoing debates about how cultural texts reflect on the postcoloniality of both power and experiences and negotiations of power in the context of crisis This book will be of interest to scholars and students of African literature Zimbabwean African studies postcolonial literature life writing and cultural studies Louis XVII Versus the "London" Times: an Historical Controversy Respecting the Legitimate King of France ... Augustus Meves (the Younger, calling himself Auguste de Bourbon, son of Louis XVII.), 1872 Chaplin in the Sound Era Eric L. Flom, 1997-01-01 Though Charles Chaplin is commonly remembered as a silent film comedian it is not widely recalled that he continued to make movies long after the introduction of sound His sound films have often been overlooked by historians despite the fact that in these films the essential character of Chaplin more overtly asserted itself in his screen images than in his earlier silent work Each of Chaplin s seven sound films City Lights 1931 Modern Times 1936 The Great Dictator 1940 Monsieur Verdoux 1947 Limelight 1952 A King in New York 1957 and A Countess from Hong Kong 1967 is covered in a chapter length essay here The comedian s inspiration for the film is given along with a narrative that describes the film and offers details on behind the scenes activities There is also a full discussion of the movie s themes and contemporary critical reaction to it The Athenaeum , 1897 Kierkegaard, Mimesis, and Modernity Wojciech Kaftanski, 2021-10-03 This book challenges the widespread view of Kierkegaard s idiosyncratic and predominantly religious position on mimesis Taking mimesis as a crucial conceptual point of reference in reading Kierkegaard this book offers a nuanced understanding of the relation between aesthetics and religion in his thought Kaftanski shows how Kierkegaard s dialectical existential reading of mimesis interlaces aesthetic and religious themes including the familiar core concepts of imitation repetition and admiration as well as the newly arisen notions of affectivity contagion and crowd behavior Kierkegaard s enduring relevance to the malaises of our own day is firmly established by his classic concern for the meaning of human life informed by reflective meditation on the mimetic origins of the contemporary age Kierkegaard Mimesis and Modernity will be of interest to scholars and advanced students working on Kierkegaard Continental philosophy the history of

Gender and Genre in Gertrude Stein Franziska Gygax, 1998-11-30 Gertrude Stein's works encompass a variety of genres. She explicitly called many of her works plays, operas, or novels, intending her works to be read with certain generic expectations in mind, only to have them undermined. Although many writers depart from generic norms, Stein's generic transgressions are radical and are related to gender-specific traits of her writing. This work examines Stein's questions about gender hierarchies, classifications, and categories and brings to light the direct relationship between gender and genre in her works. Gygax looks at a number of Stein's texts including Ida, A Novel, A Circular Play, Everybody's Autobiography, The Geographical History of America, and Blood on the Dining Room Floor, which Stein called a detective story. Readers bring to a text a set of expectations often relating to its genre. A novel, for example, is expected to share certain features with other novels, which is why it is not considered a play. But these distinctions are difficult to make, and writers often depart from generic conventions for the sake of being innovative. Generic expectations also closely relate to gender. For example, an autobiography may be read in light of the gender of the author. Like various genres, gender brings with it certain expectations which are largely determined by social values. Some individuals transgress the conventional bounds of gender roles, just as some works of literature go beyond traditional generic frames. The works of Gertrude Stein typically challenge the expectations of both gender and genre. As a lesbian writer, Stein was acutely aware of society's expectations with respect to gender. And in her writings, she is clearly concerned with genre. She explicitly calls many of her works plays, operas, or novels, intending them to be read with certain generic expectations in mind, only to transgress traditional generic expectations. Gygax explores why Stein was inevitably confronted with questions about gender and generic categories. Including a number of Stein's theoretical statements about writing, this insightful book illuminates the relationship between gender and genre in her works.

Teachers' Stories David John Thomas, 1995. In Teachers' Stories, David Thomas and his contributors present an argument for the content and process of teacher training to be enriched by the inclusion of educational biography, both general and grounded. Life histories and subject-specific accounts are significant ingredients to be stirred in with more formal theoretical and practical aspects of training. Creating educational biographies is one way of introducing students to critical reflection on their taken-for-granted educational beliefs and values and their origins. Though not a training manual, Teachers' Stories will be of interest to all teacher trainers, including the new cohort of trainers, the teacher mentors. Students will also find support for their attempts to introduce through journals, diaries, or logs their individual experiences as alternative voices to the preeminent discourses of the training institution It is suggested that such opportunities are especially valuable for students and tutors where the student s background and culture provide unusually distinctive experiences with possibilities for course enrichment as well as personal development
