The Future of Humanity Michio Kaku, 2018 Formerly the domain of fiction moving human civilization to the stars is increasingly becoming a scientific possibility and a necessity Whether in the near future due to climate change and the depletion of finite resources or in the distant future due to catastrophic cosmological events we must face the reality that humans will one day need to leave planet Earth to survive as a species World renowned physicist and futurist Michio Kaku explores in rich intimate detail the process by which humanity may gradually move away from the planet and develop a sustainable civilization in outer space He reveals how cutting edge developments in robotics nanotechnology and biotechnology may allow us to terraform and build habitable cities on Mars He then takes us beyond the solar system to nearby stars which may soon be reached by nanoships traveling on laser beams at near the speed of light Finally he brings us beyond our galaxy and even beyond our universe to the possibility of immortality showing us how humans may someday be able to leave our bodies entirely and laser port to new havens in space With irrepressible enthusiasm and wonder Dr Kaku takes readers on a fascinating journey to a future in which humanity may finally fulfill its long awaited destiny among the stars

The Future of Equality Shlomi Segall, 2025-05-15 Philosophers have been preoccupied with the future from time immemorial But for egalitarians the future of humanity constitutes a relatively new challenge The premise of this book is that a complaint based ideal of egalitarianism faces problems when applied to the future For one thing if we suppose that future people are destined to fare better than us say in terms of overall wellbeing then allowing humanity to flourish would then represent a net increase in terms of egalitarian complaints With respect to equality at least it would be better to refrain from bringing new life into being That seems absurd This is the Anti Natalist objection to egalitarianism Second any policy aimed at reducing future inequalities and indeed any population policy at large will in all likelihood affect the identity of those who will be born This familiar Non Identity problem poses unique problems for egalitarianism especially ones of the complaint model Arguably a person cannot have a complaint about being worse off than another when the only other alternative distribution is one in which she does not exist Put differently such a person lacks a standing to complain about this future inequality This can be referred to as the Non Identity objection or as the Standing objection to egalitarianism This book examines how to evaluate different scenarios for humanity s future from an egalitarian perspective It is argued that planning for the future does require egalitarian considerations but that egalitarianism also needs to be adapted to handle future persons As indicated a key challenge concerns how to evaluate mixed populations containing both necessary and possible persons The book proposes a pluralist approach combining egalitarianism with prioritarianism Prioritarianism itself also suffers unique problems when applied to the future chief among them the Separateness of Persons objection The book attempts to deflect these obstacles and aims to develop a coherent framework that maintains egalitarian principles while appropriately discounting the status of merely possible people Overall the book seeks to advance both our ethical assessment of humanity s future and our understanding of the nature of equality and distributive ethics more generally
