This book explores the changes and developments which have affected education within the Commonwealth over the years As the Secretary General notes The Commonwealth has a strong record and tradition of co operation in education encompassing articulation of values exchange of ideas and direct learning from each other This book is a reminder of that record and tradition and offers a refreshing kaleidoscope of Commonwealth educational action

Science Communication Practice in China Fujun Ren, Lin Yin, Gauhar Raza, 2021-11-26
China has made remarkable and rapid progress in the area of science communication both in theory and practice This book critically examines all aspects of science communication practices in China Dealing with major turning points since the introduction of the Science and Technology Popularization Law and the Outline of the National Scheme for Scientific Literacy the book tells a success story by scrutinizing structural changes in science communication policies education system construction and efficacious utilisation of science popularisation facilities and creative use of a mix of traditional and modern channels of communication The book also gives an in depth analysis of the monitoring and evaluation mechanism which constitutes the backbone of the national science communication project The historical roots of science communication in China include shifts in methodologies policy instruments effectual approaches and resultant practices since the days of initial efforts to popularise modern scientific ideas However the primary focus of the book remains on the initiatives launched at the turn of the present century Without losing sight of the national dimensions each chapter of the book draws from provincial as well as grassroots level experiences Quantitative and qualitative methods have been used to analyse strengths weaknesses hurdles and the efficacy of corrective measures This book offers a remarkable insight to anyone who is interested in probing the causal relationship between science communication and China's transformation into a modern society The primary objective of the book is to analyse the nature of science communication with Chinese characteristics and the specificity of the socio cultural environment in which Science and Technology is located Though the book is of particular interest to scholars researchers students and practitioners of science communication the narrative style makes it accessible to the general reader who is interested in science society relationship

E-learning and Virtual Science Centers Ramanathan Subramaniam,2005-01-01 The book provides an overview of the state of the art developments in the new and emerging field of science education called virtual science centers Provided by publisher Innovations in Science and Technology Education David Layton,1986 The eighth volume in the series examines the state of science and technology education throughout the world at the start of the 21st century and highlights the diversity of the cultural political and economic contexts within which science and technology are taught in schools across the globe It draws upon the expert reflections and recommendations reached at the World Conference on Science held in Budapest in 1999 and the International Conference of Science Technology and Mathematics Education held in Goa in 2001 Innovations in Science and Technology Education ,2003

Communicating Science Toss Gascoigne,Bernard Schiele,Joan Leach,Michelle Riedlinger,Luisa Massarani,Bruce V. Lewenstein,Peter Broks,2020-09-14 Modern science communication has emerged in the twentieth century as a field of study a body of practice and a profession and it is a practice with deep historical roots We have seen the birth of interactive science centres the first university actions in teaching and conducting research and a sharp growth in employment of science communicators This collection charts the emergence of modern science communication across the world This is the first volume to map investment around the globe in science centres university courses and research publications and conferences as well as tell the national stories of science communication How did it all begin How has development varied from one country to another What motivated governments institutions and people to see science communication as an answer to questions of the social place of science Communicating Science describes the pathways followed by 39 different countries All continents and many cultures are represented For some countries this is the first time that their science communication story has been told In Principle, in Practice John Howard Falk,Lynn Diane Dierking,Susan Foutz,2007 The science museum field has made tremendous advances in understanding museum learning but little has been done to consolidate and synthesize these findings to encourage widespread improvements in practice By clearly presenting the most current knowledge of museum learning In Principle In Practice aims to promote effective programs and exhibitions identify promising approaches for future research and develop strategies for implementing and sustaining connections between research and practice in the museum community

Medium-term Budget Framework, 2007-08 to 2009-10 ,2007 Studies in Museology ,1976 Enhancing Change Through Science Centres Aman Kumar Maulloo,2010 In our rapidly changing world there is a great need for the public understanding of science and technology to create more science literate society at all age levels Science centres and science museums are vital and powerful media for popularisation of science and creating a scientific temper across the globe Science centres are among those institutions that can play a role in showcasing science to common people whereas museums enable people to explore collections for inspiration learning and enjoyment The mission statements of science centres and modern museums may vary but all make science accessible to one and all and encourage the excitement of discovery They are an integral and dynamic part of the learning environment promoting exploration from the first Eureka moment to today s cutting edge research In order to address some of the pertinent issues and review the latest status of development related to science centres science museums science popularisation and science education the Centre for Science and Technology of the Non Aligned and other Developing Countries NAM S T Centre organized its 5th international workshop in its Science Centre series at Johannesburg South Africa during 25 28 February 2008 and in pursuance thereof has brought out this publication which includes 28 scientific articles and review papers This reference material will help the entire scientific community of developing countries in executing proper plans and strategies for inspiring the scientific values and temper among their people
