Social and Behavioral Research and the Internet Marcel Das, Peter Ester, Lars Kaczmirek, 2018-10-24 Highlighting the progress made by researchers in using Web-based surveys for data collection, this timely volume summarizes the experiences of leading behavioral and social scientists from Europe and the US who collected data using the Internet. Some chapters present theory, methodology, design, and implementation, while others focus on best practice examples and/or issues such as data quality and understanding paradata. A number of contributors applied innovative Web-based research methods to the LISS panel of CentERdata, collected from over 5,000 Dutch households. Their findings are presented in the book. Some of the data is available on the book website. The book addresses practical issues such as data quality, how to reach difficult target groups, how to design a survey to maximize response, and ethical issues that need to be considered. Innovative applications such as the use of biomarkers and eye-tracking techniques are also explored.

Part 1 provides an overview of Internet survey research, including its methodologies, strengths, challenges, and best practices. Innovative ways to minimize sources of error are provided, along with a review of mixed-mode designs, how to design a scientifically sound longitudinal panel, and how to avoid sampling problems and address ethical requirements in Web surveys. Part 2 focuses on advanced applications, including the impact of visual design on the interpretability of survey questions, the impact survey usability has on respondents' answers, design features that increase interaction, and how Internet surveys can be effectively used to study sensitive issues. Part 3 addresses data quality, sample selection, measurement, and non-response error, and new applications for collecting online data. The issue of underrepresentation of certain groups in Internet research and the measures most effective at reducing it are also addressed. The book concludes with a discussion of the importance of paradata and the Web data collection process in general, followed by chapters with innovative experiments using eye-tracking techniques and biomarker data.

This practical book appeals to practitioners from market survey research institutes and researchers in disciplines such as psychology, education, sociology, political science, health studies, marketing, economics, and business who use the Internet for data collection, but is also an ideal supplement for graduate and/or upper-level undergraduate courses on Internet research methods and/or data collection taught in these fields.

How to Use Web Scraping for Social Science James W. Besse, 2022 With people spending more of their lives online, the Internet offers a vast repository of data about social life. In this guide, students will learn about web scraping and its application in social research. Web scraping is a powerful set of techniques for obtaining such data in usefully structured ways, making it a popular data collection method in contemporary social research Students will first learn what web scraping is the available techniques for conducting it and core considerations for designing a research project using web scraping Subsequently the guide is dedicated to issues of sampling and generalizability How does sampling work in web scraping Is it the same as in offline social research or do unique issues present themselves How do you generalize from the results of social research using web scraping At the end of this guide students interested in using web scraping should be able to answer such questions and have a clear understanding of how sampling and generalizability will work in their own research
