

A complex collage of images representing various social and environmental issues. In the center, a large, dark, textured sphere is surrounded by a crowd of people. To the left, a group of people is protesting, with one person holding a sign that says "CENTRE" and a circular logo. To the right, a city skyline is visible, with a prominent skyscraper. In the background, a massive tsunami wave is crashing. In the foreground, a group of people, including a child, is walking through a debris-strewn area. The overall tone is somber and urgent.

Thinking about Social Problems Donileen R. Loseke, 2011-12-31 The new second edition of this distinctive and widely adopted textbook brings into the classroom an overview of how images of social problems can shape not only public policy and social services but also the ways in which we make sense of ourselves and others It introduces two primary changes First some attention is devoted to the new social movements that emphasize social change through identity transformation rather than through structural change Second the text now also looks more closely at the importance of emotions in constructing public consciousness of social problems When the first edition was published Teaching Sociology noted Loseke does a superb job explaining the relationship between sociology and social problems in a text that is very well research and engaging yet with tremendous attention to detail and accuracy Would provide a solid base for any social problems class Contemporary Sociology wrote that the book is engagingly well written in a personal unpretentious style and well informed by the author's knowledge of the professional literature
