

Film Lighting Techniques: The Definitive Guide

1. 3-Point Lighting Setup

The first step in setting up your three-point light setup is deciding which direction you want your subject to face. You have two options, either facing the camera or away from it. The second step is placing one key light 45 degrees off to the side that your subject's face would be on if they were facing you.

2. Split Lighting

Split lighting is a technique that uses two light sources (natural or artificial) to illuminate one side of the subject's face while leaving the other side in shadow.

This creates an interesting contrast between shadows and highlights on one person's face which can make for great photographs.

3. Butterfly Lighting

In cinematography, butterflies (also known as overheads) are structures on which materials are mounted so as to control lighting in a scene or photograph.

Butterfly Lighting, or Dietrich lighting, has the key light shining directly in front of and then raised to the subject's forehead or higher.

 Slide,1992-04-30 The video revolution in the 1980s affected all areas of the American entertainment industry its impact was most dramatic ultimately devastating to the non theatrical film field Non theatrical film is the term used to describe motion pictures which are not shown in movie theaters but are produced and or distributed to markets that include the educational community home and business and industry The author covers the early Hollywood produced features and short subjects in a format other than 35mm for homes hospitals and correctional institutions as well as industrial films This is also the history of two major non theatrical libraries Bell and Howell and Kodascope both of which were founded to service the needs of purchasers of the then newly introduced 16mm projectors The book documents how the advent of the 16mm projector made possible the introduction of audio visual aids in classrooms and offices A number of production companies were established primarily in Chicago to produce films for this new outlet In addition Hollywood saw a new market and began licensing distribution of the films Complete with appendices providing distributors from the 1920s 1940s and current names and addresses of non theatrical film sources this book length study of the history of this film genre is both important and much
