Little Theologians David M. Csinos, 2020-11-18 Children don t just learn theology They actively create it playing with ideas and drawing together aspects of their own lives to form theological understanding In Little Theologians David Csinos offers a groundbreaking exploration of how cultural contexts intersect with the theological meaning making of children The qualitative research that Csinos undertook opened windows onto the religious and spiritual lives of children within four culturally distinct congregations of the United Church of Canada He began by inviting the children to draw pictures of God and encouraging them to describe what they had drawn Their answers led to revealing exchanges about who God is how children understand spiritual experiences what it means to believe and what it means that people may believe differently This innovative study offers an in depth look at each congregation and how children make theological meaning in ways that reflect the broader culture around them as well as ways that are all their own By illuminating the diverse theological understanding of children Csinos highlights characteristics that are shared among children and those that are unique to each child Providing a radical twist of perspective Little Theologians looks to the theological insights and experiences of children to provide a lens for critiquing broader discourses surrounding cultural diversity and spirituality

Mobilizing for Transformation: How Campuses Are Preparing for the Knowledge Age James L. Morrison,Donald M. Norris,1997-09-19 This volume of New Directions for Institutional Research provides practical insight and guidance to campus leaders who are attempting to accelerate the transformation of their campuses to meet the challenges and opportunities of the Knowledge Age. This insight is drawn from case studies and vignettes from nearly twenty campuses that have succeeded in leveraging the forces of transformation on their campuses. They have achieved this leverage through multifaceted change initiatives that involve a collection of actions: 1 developing vision and strategy for the Knowledge Age, 2 conducting campuswide dialogue on change, 3 dramatically enhancing information technology infrastructure and skills, 4 redirecting existing institutional processes, 5 crafting new learning processes and products, and 6 changing the campus culture. The volume concludes with a presentation of the five families of basic competencies necessary for particular academic programs or campuses to succeed in the twenty-first century: 1 planning and change processes operating at Knowledge Age standards of timeliness, customization, and flexibility; 2 advanced IT infrastructure and skills in its use; 3 a new generation of tools for learning, interactivity, certification of mastery, and personal productivity; 4 new financial paradigms; and 5 supercharged strategic alliances. This is the 94th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Institutional Research. For more information on the series, please see the Journals and Periodicals page.

Educause Leadership Strategies, Technology-Enhanced Teaching and Learning Carole A. Barone, 2001-08-20 The new technology-rich teaching and learning environments are changing traditional higher education. This book offers a practical guide for college and university administrators who must move their institutions to becoming e-learning environments. The authors discuss new styles of institutional leadership, governance, and decision making, and examine the issues associated with faculty support and engagement, communication, and intellectual property. The book makes recommendations for gaining community consensus for the new directions, engaging and motivating faculty to use technology, and describes new roles for faculty in an e-learning environment. This volume also outlines a systemic approach to supporting faculty in online course development and describes an instructional technology support model that engages a team approach.
