Urbanization In Nepal:

Urbanization in Nepal Pitamber Sharma,1989 State of Urbanization in Nepal Keshav Bhattarai,Ambika P. Adhikari,Shiva Gautam,2023 Nepali government s official delineation of several human settlements as new urban areas has been questionable because many important criteria such as urban infrastructure and services open space population density and economic viability are not thoroughly analyzed while defining what is urban Many settlements in Nepal officially defined as urban often driven by political considerations are operating in the rural framework forming ruralopolises This paper analyzes various criteria needed for defining urbanization that are internationally accepted to assess Nepal s official definition of urban settlements Urban areas have been expanding in Nepal at the cost of agricultural forest and shrubland land uses Spatial visualization of urban expansion and road network clearly indicate that new urban areas that are radiating from the established large urban centers are expanding along the road network on land that are relatively flat with less than 150 slope to the horizontal plane Undulated landscape low density population and lack of road infrastructure among other factors have limited the expansion of urban areas in the mountainous region Using 10 x 10 m sentinel satellite imagery the paper presents detailed analyses of land use and cover changes from 2017 to 2021 These years are chosen because after the promulgation of the new constitution in 2015 rapid urbanization started but its implementation state restructuring began only after 2017 The urban areas as defined by the government expanded rapidly in the Tarai and mid Hills regions from 23% in 2014 to 66% in 2017 and is expanding further

Sustainable Urban Development Ram Babu Singh,2006 The present compendium of 26 papers relates to conceptual and empirical case studies from India and other Asian countries It also combines an academic understanding with an empirical case studies from India and other Asian countries

Urban Growth and Spatial Transition in Nepal Elisa Muzzini,Gabriela Aparicio,2013-05-14 Nepal Urban Growth and Spatial Transition carries out an initial assessment of Nepals urban growth and spatial transformation with a focus on spatial demographic and economic trends economic growth drivers and infrastructure requirements of Nepals urban regions The book notes that Nepal is the fastest urbanizing country in South Asia The spatial transformation is characterized by fast growing population density in the Kathmandu Valley Nepals largest urban conurbation along the main highways and close to the border with India and clustering of economic production in the Kathmandu Valley and in the Eastern and Western Tarai Yet urbanization has been less correlated with economic growth in Nepal than in other countries in South Asia In spite of its remarkable progress in alleviating poverty Nepal is caught up in a cycle of political instability and economic stagnation with economic growth below 4 percent per annum over the last decade Urban areas have distinct comparative advantage in cultural tourism services crafts and agro processing but they have not been able to turn them into competitive advantages Lack of effective planning and inadequate infrastructure are a major constraint for urban growth and competitiveness Nepal needs to foster the sustainable growth of its urban regions promote the development and regeneration of the Kathmandu

Valley Metropolitan Region and enhance the competitiveness of strategic urban clusters first and foremost tourism agro processing and handicraft to unlock urban based growth and ensure the sustainability of the spatial transformation The study aims to stimulate evidence based policy dialogue on Nepals urban transition and assist those working in the critical area for Nepals economic development the Government the private sector civil society and the development partners in framing policies and interventions for addressing the challenges and seizing the benefits of rapid urbanization Housing and Urban Development in Nepal Jibgar Joshi,1999 Studies in Nepali History and Society ,2005 Country Report ,1971
