Stockholding in Europe L. Guiso, M. Haliassos, T. Jappelli, 2002-11-15 The past decade has been a time of drastic developments both in financial markets and in related academic research Among the most striking developments are the expanded stockholder base the increased popularity of mutual funds among households and the growing importance of private pension funds Developments in Europe mirror to a large extent the spread of equity culture in the United States but with lower levels of involvement and interesting differences across European countries This book intended for a wide audience of students practitioners and policy makers provides the theoretical and methodological background necessary for analysis of stockholding behaviour and presents empirical studies that use the most comprehensive household level databases to identify determinants of stockholding in five major European countries Household Stockholding in Europe Luigi Guiso, 2008 We discuss the current state of stockownership among households in major European countries France Germany Italy the Netherlands Sweden and the UK drawing parallels and contrasts with the US experience We use detailed microeconomic datasets and explore the extent to which observed international differences in stockholding can be attributed to differences in household characteristics Statistical analysis finds 1 an increase in stock market participation in all countries 2 persistent differences across countries with the US the UK and Sweden having considerable more participation than France Germany Italy 3 a robust correlation between the participation decision on the one hand and wealth and education on the other 4 a relatively small effect of education and wealth on the asset share invested in stocks conditional on participation Interestingly international differences in stock market participation remain large even when we control for household characteristics As our empirical results point to the relevance of participation costs we probe into a number of indicators of such costs and we find that these are consistent with the observed pattern of participation across countries Since the lowering of such costs brings into the market households with different characteristics than incumbents we discuss their likely impact policy concerns and types of policies that could mitigate their adverse impact on the future workings of the market Metal Bulletin Monthly, 1983 Finance Essentials Scott Moeller, 2012-04-26 Written by some of the best minds in finance this book is crammed full of top quality content that enables the practitioner and student alike to become more knowledgeable in their fields of interest Sheet Metal Industries, 1988 The Economics of European Agriculture Bernadette Andreosso-O'Callaghan, 2003-09-08 The Economics of European Agriculture explains the demand and supply characteristics of agricultural markets as well as government intervention in agriculture with an emphasis on the Common Agricultural Policy CAP Bernadette Andreosso O Callaghan also analyses the fifth enlargement and its implications for agriculture in Europe technology and innovation and agricultural trade liberalization Aanwinsten van de Centrale Bibliotheek \(Queteletfonds\) Bibliothèque centrale (Fonds Quetelet), 2003 Steels Alert, 1992 Major Companies of Europe, 2001 Advances in Construction and Demolition Waste Recycling F.
