

Chris finally managed to hop the fence of the institution which wasn't an easy task in the boots he had been given. For eight weeks he had been held against his will at a strange scientific institution. Chris acted as a guinea pig for several experiments. One gave him an extra set of arms, while another turned his skin purple. Every week would be the same; they would test an experiment on him and record the results. After a while, Chris began to submit to the tests and would no longer put up a fight, therefore, gaining the scientists' trust. Little did they know that he had a plan forming. The last experiment they tested on him transformed him into a woman. The experiment was to test the psychological effect on being a man trapped inside of a woman's body. They forced him to dress in only the clothes they picked out for him, mostly dresses and heels as well as hired a makeup artist to do Chris's makeup. Unfortunately for Chris, he was a beautiful woman. During one of his unsupervised "exercise sessions" Chris turned the scientists' trust against them and climbed the fence out of the institution. His freedom came at the cost of being stuck as a woman, which in his mind, was not the worst thing the institution had done to him.
