110 year trajectory of defamation based laws in Thailand The most prominent of these is libel but defamation aspects also appear in laws on sedition and treason the press and cinema anti communism contempt of court insulting of religion as well as libel This book makes the case that despite the appearance of growing democratization authoritarian structures and urges still drive politics in Thailand the long term effects of defamation law adjudication has skewed the way that Thai society approaches and perceives truth Employing the work of Habermas Foucault Agamben and Schmitt to construct an alternative framework to understand Thai history Streckfuss contends that Thai history has become suspended since 1958 and repeatedly declining to face the truth of history has set the stage for an endless state of crisis This book will be of interest to students and scholars of South East Asian politics Asian history and media and communication David Streckfuss is an independent scholar who has lived in Thailand for more than 20 years His work primarily concerns human rights and political and cultural history
