

Tips for improving your writing

Any piece of writing that we do will depend on three things:

Content

We must think about what we are actually going to write.

Where do I start?

You can't write anything if you haven't got anything to say! Obvious, right? But it's easy to start writing and then run out of steam. To avoid this make sure you choose the question you are going to answer carefully and plan your answer before you start to make sure you've got enough to say about the topic. If you can't think of at least five points to make, choose a different question.

How can I make the content good?

- Follow the bullet points in the question and keep looking back at the question so you don't wander off the subject!
- Use the techniques you've learnt for making writing persuasive, exciting, powerful, emotive...e.g., rhetorical questions, lists of 3, similes and metaphors, alliteration, emotive language, descriptive language, argument markers, varied sentence lengths etc.

Audience

We should always consider who we are writing for.

A letter starting 'Alright mate!' would be fine for a friend, but not for your local MP! Similarly, you wouldn't write 'Dear Sir / Madam' to your best friend! You need to use the right tone and language –it may be formal (Standard English, no slang) or informal (chatty, colloquial, friendly).

Purpose

We also need to think about why we are writing.

Are you writing to entertain, interest, argue, persuade, frighten, create tension, give information...?

Making Progress in Writing Eve Bearne,2003-08-29 Children s achievements in writing lag behind their achievements in reading speaking and listening National tests are beginning to expose this gap and inevitably it is raising concerns The issue is not without controversy but regardless of the politics of the situation national progress in children s writing is both needed and possible This new book from Eve Bearne makes a valuable contribution towards helping teachers close this gap Uniquely it follows the structure of the National Literacy Strategy whilst examining key areas such as bridging KS2 and KS3 writing and writing skills beyond the Literacy Hour Such a structure makes the book incredibly practical and easy to use providing essential information for both practitioners and academics

International Perspectives on Writing Curricula and Development Jill Jeffery,Judy M. Parr,2021-05-27 This book contributes to the innovation of writing education and research globally by providing crucial insights into how the structures and aims of literacy curricula vary internationally It examines how nine education systems across five continents represent good writing in curricula that shape students experiences learning to write in school The book presents curricular analyses aimed at providing insight into how writing development can be better supported through innovative policy and research The findings regarding international variation are presented under three broad dimensions social and contextual factors that shape writing curricula the discourses of writing reflected in curricula and official documents and hallmarks of classroom practice including the relationship with official discourse Case study chapters present integrated inductive and deductive document analyses findings of which are compared in a concluding cross case analysis chapter Offering a detailed comparative analysis of writing research International Perspectives on Writing Curricula and Development will be of great interest to academics researchers and students in the fields of education literacy and curriculum studies It will also be relevant reading for policymakers and curriculum designers Chapters 1 7 9 10 and 11 of this book are freely available as downloadable Open Access PDFs at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license

Being Creative in Primary English

Adrian Copping, 2016-09-19 Why should we foster creativity in primary English A practical and accessible text that demonstrates how creative thinking and learning can support primary English teaching With chapters mapped to the Teachers Standards and links to the new National Curriculum each chapter provides a case study exploring high quality primary English practice including planning rationale and ideas for the classroom These are fully grounded in a wide range of theoretical frameworks viewpoints and values Reflective activities in each chapter offering practical exercises and additional reading suggestions encourage trainee teachers to further their understanding of how theory translates to classroom practice This inspiring book helps support learning teaching and assessment without losing innovation excitement and motivation for both teachers and children EBOOK: Teaching Creative Writing in the Primary School: Delight, Entice, Inspire! Julie MacLusky, Robyn Cox, 2011-09-16 Over the last 15 years the Primary National Strategy and the standards driven curriculum in teacher education have demonstrably improved the primary education of children in the UK Yet there has been a growing awareness that creativity has been neglected To address this a range of initiatives have been launched to offer support for creativity in the primary curriculum This book will provide teachers with a set of teaching strategies to provide children with a tool kit of creative skills This book suggests that a child who might dislike a lesson on the correct use of grammar will become excited by a lesson that involves using his or her own talents and experiences to create a story Throughout the process of composing the story the child will attend to aspects of grammar in order to share their work with others Results from the classroom research conducted using the exercises in this book suggest that the book has the power to enable teachers to engage pupils in writing lessons who are often uninterested in classroom writing lessons The book also includes 20 creative writing templates for classroom activities A variety of exercises to help develop creative writing skills and build pupil confidence Detailed curriculum links Teaching Creative Writing in the Primary School is essential reading for all primary school teachers The Really Practical Guide to Primary English Diana Bentley, 1999 This book contains clear chapter objectives suggestions for further reading on each topic and a glossary explaining key terms that the new or trainee teacher will need to understand The authors have all taught English in the primary setting are experienced teacher trainers and respected practitioners in their own specialist fields The Learning and Teaching of Reading and Writing Naomi Flynn, Rhona Stainthorp, 2006-07-11 This book provides a unique description of teacher pupil interaction during the Literacy Hour in good schools It is based on detailed observations in inner city primary schools that were recognised as effective and improving The analysis is informed by contemporary research into the development and teaching of early literacy The book provides practice based examples of how teachers and schools might adapt their delivery for literacy as they move to greater creativity in their teaching of reading and writing The analysis begins within the classrooms of three expert Key Stage 1 teachers and broadens out in to the wider setting of the schools and their senior management teams An important theme running throughout the book is how the three teachers were able to make exceptional provision for their pupils who were largely second language speakers and from socio economically disadvantaged groups The teachers successful practice grew from their understanding of both early literacy development and planning for individual need The information in this book will enable student teachers recently qualified teachers and teachers interested in enhancing their literacy teaching to develop their practice in a similarly successful way
