The Last Banzai:

Tōjō Courtney Browne, 1967 General minister of war prime minister and unrepentant ultranationalist Hideki Tojo 1884-1948 was the most powerful leader in the Japanese government during World War II From October 1941 to July 1944 he held unquestioned control advocating and setting in motion the attack on Pearl Harbor as well as pushing forward the Japanese offensives in China Southeast Asia and the Pacific The author examines Tojo's life against the backdrop of increasing Japanese militarism civil war political assassinations and coup d'états and uses exclusive interviews with Tojo's wife to illuminate the spartan single-minded incorruptible personality of the man who chose war rather than succumb to U.S.-induced economic strangulation From the initial victories through the later severe defeats and Tojo's resignation to his thwarted suicide attempt trial as a war criminal and execution no other book offers such a clear and compelling portrait

The Last Great Banzai Bradley Mason Gates, 2024-07-17 On July 7, 1944, all remaining Japanese forces on Saipan conducted a massive suicide attack against the American forces that had landed on the island several weeks earlier. At approximately 3am, the Japanese forces rushed southward on the Tanapag Plain and overwhelmed the soldiers of the U.S. Army's 27th Infantry Division. Hundreds of Japanese soldiers continued unimpeded for 1,200 yards where they came upon the U.S. Marine artillerymen of the 3rd Battalion of the 10th Marine Regiment of the 2nd Marine Division. Direct howitzer and machine gun fire slowed but did not stop the massive suicide attack. The howitzer batteries as well as headquarters battery were overrun and the Marines banded together in small pockets with rifles and pistols in an effort to hold off the Japanese. Against formidable odds, the Marines withstood continued Japanese attacks for nearly twelve hours until soldiers from other units fought their way forward and finally stopped the charge. The scene of carnage on the Tanapag Plain the next day was indescribable. The Marines who survived the attack were in shock. Those who observed the aftermath of the battle could not believe it had happened but it was one of the most dramatic days in military history

Following fifteen Marines from the Pearl Harbor attack through battles with the Japanese to their return home after V-J Day, Adam Makos and Marcus Brotherton have compiled an oral history of the Pacific War in the words of the men who fought on the front lines. With unflinching honesty, these Marines reveal harrowing accounts of combat with an implacable enemy, the friendships and camaraderie they found and lost, and the aftermath of the war's impact on their lives. With unprecedented access to the veterans' rare photographs and unpublished memoirs, Voices of the Pacific presents true stories of heroism as told by such World War II veterans as Sid Phillips, R.V. Earhart,2015-06-01 This unique window on history employs hundreds of images and written records from Japanese periodicals during World War II to trace the nation s transformation from a colorful cosmopolitan empire in 1937 to a bleak total war society facing imminent destruction in 1945 The author draws upon his extensive collection of Japanese wartime publications to reconstruct the government controlled media's narrative of the war's goals and progress thus providing a close up look at how the war was shown to Japanese on the home front Many of these visual and written sources are rare in Japan and were previously unavailable in the West Strikingly the narrative remains consistent and convincing from victory to retreat and even as defeat looms large Earhart's nuanced reading of Japan's wartime media depicts a nation waging war against the world and a government terrorizing its own people At once informed scholarly and readily accessible this lavishly illustrated volume offers an accurate representation of the official Japanese narrative of the war in contemporary terms The images are fresh and compelling revealing a forgotten world by turns familiar and alien beautiful and stark poignant and terrifying
