Writing In The Disciplines:

Writing in the Disciplines Mary Lynch Kennedy, William John Kennedy, Hadley M. Smith, 2004 Writing in the Disciplines A Reader for Writers Fifth Edition provides an anthology of readings that represents various rhetorical approaches across academic disciplines such as humanities the natural sciences and technology and the social sciences New to the Fifth Edition New selections featuring exciting and often controversial articles on topics ranging from cloning to saving endangered species to security in the wake of September 11th to the changing American family All new suites of articles dedicated to current topics such as Rethinking School and Religion and Identity Many collaborative activities are offered to facilitate group work and strategies for learning through interaction

Writing in the Academic Disciplines David R. Russell, 2002 To understand the ways students learn to write we must go beyond the small and all too often marginalized component of the curriculum that treats writing explicitly and look at the broader though largely tacit traditions students encounter in the whole curriculum explains David R Russell in the introduction to this singular study The updated edition provides a comprehensive history of writing instruction outside general composition courses in American secondary and higher education from the founding public secondary schools and research universities in the 1870s through the spread of the writing across the curriculum movement in the 1980s through the WAC efforts in contemporary curriculums

Local Knowledges, Local Practices Jonathan Monroe, 2007-01-26 Cornell University has stood at the forefront of writing instruction at least since the publication of William Strunk and E B White s classic The Elements of Style in 1918 For the past thirty years Cornell has been the site of a remarkably sustained and successful interdisciplinary approach to writing across the curriculum a program that now coordinates nearly two hundred courses each semester sponsored by over thirty different departments Local Knowledges Local Practices provides an overview of Cornell s rich history and distinguished achievements in training students to write well Including the views of professors representing a variety of disciplines from animal science to political science anthropology to philosophy romance studies to neurobiology this collection will serve as a resource for anyone interested in broadly conceived discipline specific writing instruction

Everyday Genres Mary Soliday, 2011-02-07 In Everyday Genres Writing Assignments across the Disciplines Mary Soliday calls on genre theory which proposes that writing cannot be separated from social situation to analyze the common assignments given to writing students in the college classroom and to investigate how new writers and expert readers respond to a variety of types of coursework in different fields This in depth study of writing pedagogy looks at many challenges facing both instructors and students in college composition classes and offers a thorough and refreshing exploration of writing experience ability and rhetorical situation Soliday provides an overview of the contemporary theory and research in Writing across the Curriculum programs focusing specifically on the implementation of the Writing Fellows Program at the City College of New York Drawing on her direct observations of colleagues and students at the school she addresses the everyday challenges that novice writers face such as developing an appropriate stance in one's writing and the intricacies of choosing and developing content. The volume then goes on to address some of the most pressing questions being asked by teachers of composition: To what extent can writing be separated from its situation? How can rhetorical expertise be shared across fields? And to what degree is writing ability local rather than general? Soliday argues that while writing is closely connected to situation, general rhetorical principles can still be capably applied if those situations are known. The key to improving writing instruction, she maintains, is to construct contexts that expose writers to the social actions that genres perform for readers. Supplementing the author's case study are six appendixes complete with concrete examples and helpful teaching tools to establish effective classroom practices and exercises in Writing across the Curriculum programs. Packed with useful information and insight, Everyday Genres is an essential volume for both students and teachers seeking to expand their understanding of the nature of writing.

Teaching Academic Writing as a Discipline-Specific Skill in Higher Education Ezza, El-Sadig Y., Drid, Touria, 2019-12-27 It is now held that writing influences and is influenced by the discipline where it occurs. The representations that writers employ to produce and comprehend texts are said to be sensitive to the specificities of their disciplinary discourse communities. This exposes writers to divergent disciplinary demands and expectations on what counts as good and appropriate writing in terms of generic structure, discourse features, and stylistic preferences reflecting dissimilar practices. Because of such exigencies, academic writing seems at times to be very challenging, especially for novice scholars. Thus, any attempt to perceive the function of academic writing in higher education or to evaluate its quality should not discard the shaping force of the disciplines. Teaching Academic Writing as a Discipline Specific Skill in Higher Education is a critical scholarly resource that examines the role of writing within academic circles and the disciplinary practices of writing in scholastic environments. The book will also explore the particular difficulties that confront writers in the disciplines, as well as the endeavors of educational institutions to develop discipline-specific writing traditions among practicing and novice scholars. Featuring a range of topics such as blended learning, data interpretation, and knowledge construction, this book is essential for instructors, academicians, administrators, professors, researchers, and students.
