Feighery, Christopher S. Gibson, Trevor M. Rajah, 2015-01-15 The United Nations Compensation Commission UNCC is a claims reparation program created by the United Nations Security Council in May 1991 after the UN authorized Allied Coalition Forces military operations terminated the seven month invasion and occupation of Kuwait by Iraq and liberated

Kuwait The UNCC was established with the objectives to receive and decide claims from individuals corporations and governments against Iraq as arising directly from Iraq's invasion and occupation of Kuwait and to pay compensation for such claims War Reparations and the UN Compensation Commission Designing Compensation After Conflict is the first collective work on the UNCC claims program by experts who have contributed to its progress and who have assisted in paving the way for more informed research on the Commission and its jurisprudence Given its unprecedented serious and sustained effort within the international community the two decade long operations of the UNCC deserve considerable attention and in depth analysis especially with respect to its impact on the development and progress of international law in the areas of State responsibility and reparations

The United Nations Compensation Commission and the Balancing of Rights Between Individual Claimants and the Government of Iraq John J. Chung, 2015 The UN Compensation Commission the Commission in Geneva resolved over 2.68 million claims filed by governments corporations and individuals seeking more than 350 billion in compensation for losses suffered during Iraq's invasion and occupation of Kuwait in 1990-91 This article focuses on one aspect of the Commission's work that has drawn little attention in the body of commentary describing the work of the Commission the challenges involved in establishing a fair process and framework for resolving more than 2.67 million claims filed by the individual victims of war The Commission struggled to achieve a fine balance between the protection of the rights of individual claimants and the rights of the Government of Iraq The difficulty of this task was compounded by the fact that neither the claimants nor the Government of Iraq was in a position to submit a sufficient factual record to support its respective position This article examines the challenges faced by the individual claimants the Government of Iraq and the Commission in addressing these difficulties and describes the framework the Commission ultimately employed This article concludes that two inter-related procedural features served to safeguard the rights of the claimants and the Government of Iraq 1 the use of an inquisitorial process instead of an adversarial process to decide claims and 2 the use of disinterested third party fact finding reports to supply the factual record This article further concludes that any future commission that addresses the losses of individual victims of war or war like hostilities will need to adopt these same features

Request to the Governing Council of the United Nations Compensation Commission (UNCC) United Nations Security Council by the Government of the Republic of Iraq 'Irāq, 1996
