Thinking Through The Environment:

Thinking Through the Environment Mark J. Smith, 1999 This broad ranging and thought provoking set of readings stresses the diversity of responses in the way the natural environment has been understood and questioned in the modern world

Thinking through Landscape Augustin Berque, 2020-09-23 Our attitude to nature has changed over time This book explores the historical literary and philosophical origins of the changes in our attitude to nature that allowed environmental catastrophes to happen The book presents a philosophical reflection on human societies attitude to the environment informed by the history of the concept of landscape and the role played by the concept of nature in the human imagination It features a wealth of examples from around the world to help understand the contemporary environmental crisis in the context of both the built and natural environment Berque locates the start of this change in human labour and urban elites being cut off from nature Nature became an imaginary construct masking our real interaction with the natural world He argues that this gave rise to a theoretical and literary appreciation of landscape at the expense of an effective practical engagement with nature This mindset is a general feature of the world s civilizations manifested in similar ways in different cultures across Europe China North Africa and Australia Yet this approach did not have disastrous consequences until the advent of western industrialization As a phenomenological hermeneutics of human societies environmental relation to nature the book draws on Heideggerian ontology and Veblen s sociology It provides a powerful distinction between two attitudes to landscape the tacit knowledge of earlier peoples engaged in creating the landscape through their work landscaping thought and the explicit theoretical and aesthetic attitudes of modern city dwellers who love nature while belonging to a civilization that destroys the landscape landscape thinking This book gives a critical survey of landscape thought and theory for students researchers and anyone interested in human societies relation to nature in the fields of landscape studies environmental philosophy cultural geography and environmental history

Thinking Through Place on the Early Modern English Stage Andrew Bozio, 2020-02-06 Thinking Through Place on the Early Modern English Stage argues that environment and embodied thought continually shaped one another in the performance of early modern English drama It demonstrates this first by establishing how characters think through their surroundings not only how they orient themselves within unfamiliar or otherwise strange locations but also how their environs function as the scaffolding for perception memory and other forms of embodied thought It then contends that these moments of thinking through place theorise and thematise the work that playgoers undertook in reimagining the stage as the setting of the dramatic fiction By tracing the relationship between these two registers of thought in such plays as The Malcontent Dido Queen of Carthage Tamburlaine King Lear The Knight of the Burning Pestle and Bartholomew Fair this book shows that drama makes visible the often invisible means by which embodied subjects acquire a sense of their surroundings It also reveals how in doing so theatre altered the way that playgoers perceived experienced and imagined place in early modern England Thinking Through the Environment Timo Myllyntaus,2012-08 Thinking through the Environment Green Approaches to Global History is a collection offering global perspectives on the intersections of mind and environment across a variety of discourses from history and politics to the visual arts and architecture Its geographical coverage extends to locations in Africa Asia Australia Europe and North America A primary aim of the volume is through the presentation of research cases to gather an appropriate methodological arsenal for the study of environmental history Among its concerns are interdisciplinarity eco biography the relationship of political and environmental history and culturally varied interpretations and appreciations of space from Bangladesh to the Australian outback The approaches of the indigenous peoples of Lapland Mount Kilimanjaro and elsewhere to their environments are scrutinised in several chapters Balancing survival both in terms of resource exploitation and of response to natural catastrophes and environmental protection is shown to be an issue for more and less developed societies as illustrated by chapters on Sami reindeer herding Sudanese cattle husbandry and flooding and water resource use in several parts of Europe As the title suggests the volume exposes the lenses tinted by culture and history through which humans consider environments and also foregrounds the importance of rigorous thinking through of the lessons of environmental history and the challenges of the environmental future Critical Thinking in Clinical Assessment and Diagnosis Barbara Probst,2015-04-30 This much needed volume brings to the clinician or student some of the best critical minded analysis by some of the most insightful thinkers about psychiatric diagnosis today The thought provoking questions these essays raise and the multifaceted and provocative answers they provide cultivate sensitivity to the nuances of diagnostic assessment that often makes the difference between clinical success and failure Jerome C Wakefield PhD DSW New York University Silver School of Social Work New York This transformative resource challenges social workers and mental health professionals to rethink their approaches to assessment and diagnosis from the ground up Among the book s unique features are its use of diverse lenses to examine a common case and its illustration of how multiple perspectives can be integrated for a richly textured portrait of the individual in context Equally crucial is the book s commitment to professional development from exercises to improve case conceptualization to strategies for teaching and learning Topics include The DSM 5 definition of mental disorder critique and alternatives Making assessment decisions macro mezzo and micro perspectives Neuroscience resilience and the embodiment of mental disorder Narrative psychodynamic and cultural conceptualizations of disorder Person centered and contextualized diagnosis in mental health Meeting the challenge of teaching integrated assessment Critical Thinking in Clinical Assessment and Diagnosis has much to offer professionals researchers and educators in the fields of social work and mental health Thinking Through Sources for Ways of the World, Volume 1 Robert W. Thinking Through Mathematics Edward A. Silver, Jeremy Kilpatrick, Beth Schlesinger, Dennie Wolf, 1990 This document focuses on how mathematics teaching and learning can be improved by developing more powerful approaches to connect thinking and mathematics It proposes changing perspectives on what it means to learn and do mathematics and explores how these perspectives can be incorporated into the teaching of secondary school mathematics Chapter 1 offers a view of mathematics as emerging largely from individual and social activity rather than from textbooks worksheets and tradition The learner is depicted as someone who actively constructs meaning instead of passively receiving it Chapter 2 considers how a greater emphasis on communication discussion debate recording and writing stimulates and uncovers students learning and thinking and leads to a deeper understanding by both teachers and students Chapter 3 explores how teachers might encourage greater inquiry and communication in a secondary school class by making minor but thought provoking changes in ordinary problems and situations Finally chapter 4 gives some practical advice on transforming the mathematics classroom into a place where students are expected not only to absorb and consume mathematics but also to produce and think about it Contains 17 references and 17 figures MKR Psychological Review , 1898 Contributions to Psychology Princeton University, 1898 Reprinted from scientific journals Psychological Review James Mark Baldwin, James McKeen Cattell, Howard Crosby Warren, John Broadus Watson, Herbert Sidney Langfeld, Carroll Cornelius Pratt, Theodore Mead Newcomb, 1922 Issues for 1894 1903 include the section Psychological literature

Strategic thinking in Government Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Public Administration Select Committee, 2012-04-24 In the light of recent concerns about a strategic vacuum at the centre of Government this Report explores the capacity of Ministers and officials to carry out long term strategic thinking to tackle the complex diverse and unpredictable domestic and global challenges the country faces It finds that an absence of clear and precise definition of terms meant that policy and different levels of strategy became muddled leading to unintended and unwelcome outcomes Drawing on the evidence it received the Report sets out clear definitions for national or grand strategy operational strategy and policy PASC have produced a number of recommendations to overcome the barriers to working strategically in Government Central to these recommendations is that the Government should publish an annual Statement of National Strategy in Parliament which reflects the interests of all parts of the UK and the devolved policy agendas The report states that the Cabinet and its committees are accountable for decisions but there remains a critical unfulfilled role at the centre of Government in coordinating and reconciling priorities across departments and of long term and short term goals The report concludes that the government s six strategic aims as provided to PASC are too meaningless to serve any useful purpose The strategic aims of the Government informed by public opinion should reflect the UK s national character assets capabilities interests and values and provide an indication of the objectives which policies must achieve

Rebuilding Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design Rachel Armitage,Paul Ekblom,2019-02-11
Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design CPTED is a practice oriented approach to reduce the risk of offences such as burglary and fear of crime by modifying the built environment In recent years this approach has been criticised for duplicating terminology and for failing to integrate successfully with other approaches Rebuilding Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design explores and extends the common ground between CPTED and situational crime prevention another traditional approach in the field of crime prevention and security via the latter s evolution into the field of crime science Drawing on international research to develop new interdisciplinary perspectives this volume explores how situational crime prevention and environmental criminological theories relate to those of Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design and considers how crime science can be reformulated to merge different approaches or at least articulate them better Rebuilding Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design will appeal to students applied academic researchers and practitioners who wish to deepen their understanding and contribute in turn to the ongoing revitalisation of the field
