Academic Writing Ilona Leki, 1998-07-13 This book provides instruction on the process writers go through to produce texts. It teaches attention to form, format, and accuracy. The central goals of the Student's Book are to teach the process that writers go through to produce texts and to provide instructions on how to meet the demands of the academy by attention to form and accuracy. One half of the book is devoted to leading the student through the process of writing from observation and experience. About a quarter of the book focuses on helping the student solve the writing problems typical of university-level course work. The remaining part of the book contains an anthology of readings that correspond to the assignments used in the earlier portions of the text. Through an emphasis on the academic applications of writing and on exploring processes and strategies, this text helps students produce, prepare, and polish their writing. Writing and Technique David N. Dobrin, 1989 This book examines the ways that writing is taught in this age of technology. The book begins with writing about tools; technical writing considers writing itself as a tool and concludes with tools that aid writing. The aim is to study the interpenetration of writing and technology in order to determine how technology has affected writing. The book is allied with a tradition of opposition to technology and to the main thrust of composition research over the last 10 years. Writing, it is concluded, is not reducible to technology because it is an activity rooted in meaning and human relations. Chapter topics cover: 1. the technology of writing, 2. common sense in communications, 3. technical writing, 4. information transfer, 5. objectivity of technical writing, 6. audience awareness, 7. use and purpose of outlines, 8. paragraph structure, and 9. computers and the techniques of writing. A summary chart of the discussion, notes, and reference list are appended. RS

Writing Skills For Technical Purposes, 2006 In a world of rapid technological development, people are constantly falling behind and becoming technological illiterates. Technology companies are constantly struggling to find effective ways to help customers or potential customers understand the advantages or the operation of their new products. Technical writing is a specialized, structured way of writing where information is presented in a format and manner that best suits the cognitive and psychological needs of the readers so they can respond to a document. Thus, it is writing formatted and shaped to make reading as simple, poignant, unequivocal, and enjoyable as possible. It so happens that most technical writing positions are still primarily offered to those who can write effective end-user manuals, system design documents, Web sites, and the like for engineering and IT firms. This book aims to teach students the skill of technical writing. It is unique in that it gets to the point, uses practical outlines throughout, and actually shows students how to produce the most common technical documents, step by step. It employs a laid-back approach that is focused on providing real-world information in a straightforward and easy-to-understand manner.
